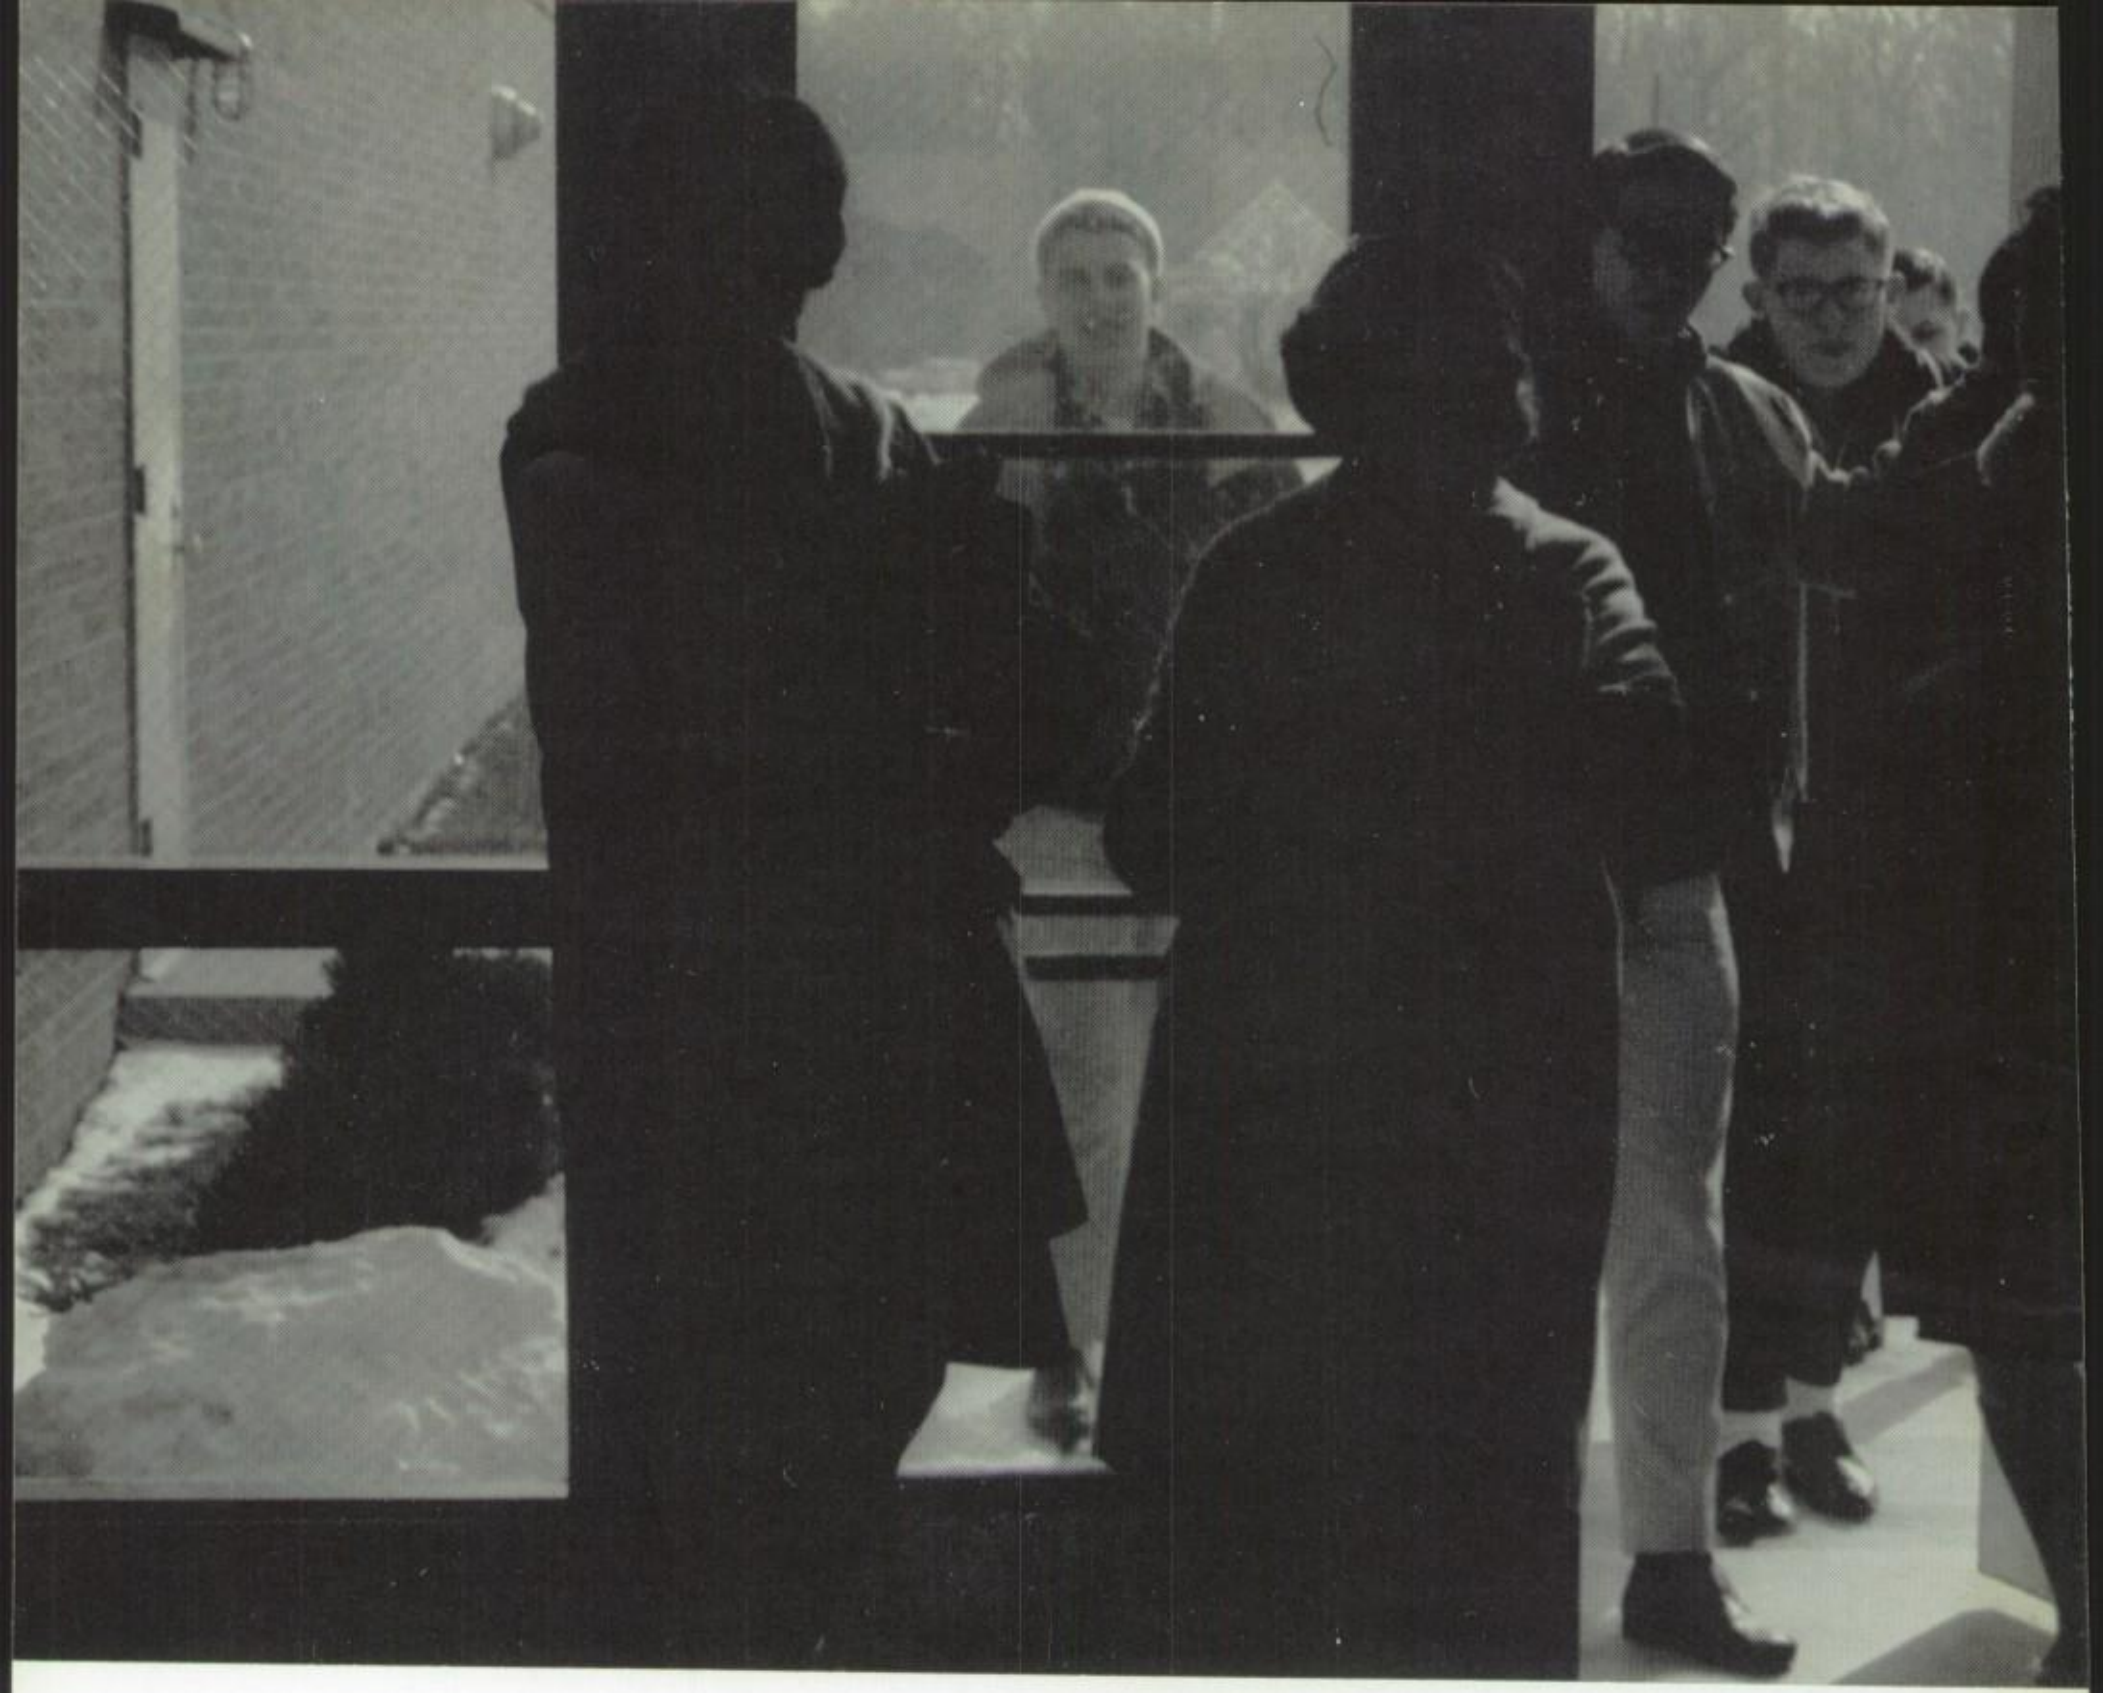
Eastwood High School

Pemberville, Ohio
Volume VII



Eastwoodites take immense pride in their school--and rightly so--for at the educational, geographical and recreational center of the community stands EHS.

Through a wide program of curricular and extra-curricular activities, Eastwood educates and prepares its students for entering many fields of endeavor. This is the primary step in furnishing each pupil with the skills and knowledge necessary for the continuation of his life-time ambitions.

In addition to attending the daily schedule of classes, Eastwoodites meet friends, share experiences, and engage in numerous activities, as part of their school life. The 1964-65 school year has been no exception in filling the life of each student with every congenial and exciting moment of its typical atmosphere.

A record enrollment of 540 students journeyed through the halls of learning and studied many of the sixty-four courses taught each day at EHS. They utilized its superb athletic facilities, admired its improved schoolground and parking areas, and participated in many of the activities offered.

Expanding to meet the needs of its ever-increasing enrollment, Eastwood High School continues to revitalize its curriculum, facilities, and high standards of achievement. Herein, the chief motivation is the desire to extend every possible chance to its pupils for the enrichment of their lives.

This is EHS--personalities, activities, opportunities. These are the facets of school life which silhouette, or picture it, amidst a background of community, national, and world affairs. These are SILHOUETTES OF '65 at Eastwood.

Silhouettes Of '65

Silhouetted against the educational scene of EHS is a multitude of activities which comprise the many facets of school life.

From the very beginning of the school day, the very characteristic life of the Eastwood High student begins to unfold. Hopping off a crowded bus, talking in the halls before classes, and cramming for a first-hour exam are typical sights on the morning scene at EHS.

Following morning announcements, the school remains relatively calm until lunch time. Then each lunch hour bell signals an eager rush to the cafeteria. Afternoon again finds students back in classes, engaged in serious study, until the 2:30 bell dismisses everyone to board the busses again.

Pep rallies, special assemblies, and an occasional fire drill provide exciting breaks in the regular routine of classes. Homecomings and school plays provide special events and lasting memories of high school days. Athletic contests, band and choral performances, and dances fill weekends with school activities and excitement. Club meetings, athletic practices, play rehearsals, and other extracurricular activities find many students staying after school hours.

All these aspects contribute to the full picture of school life. Each supplements the educational experience and creates the atmosphere which characterizes Eastwood High School: people, education, activities.

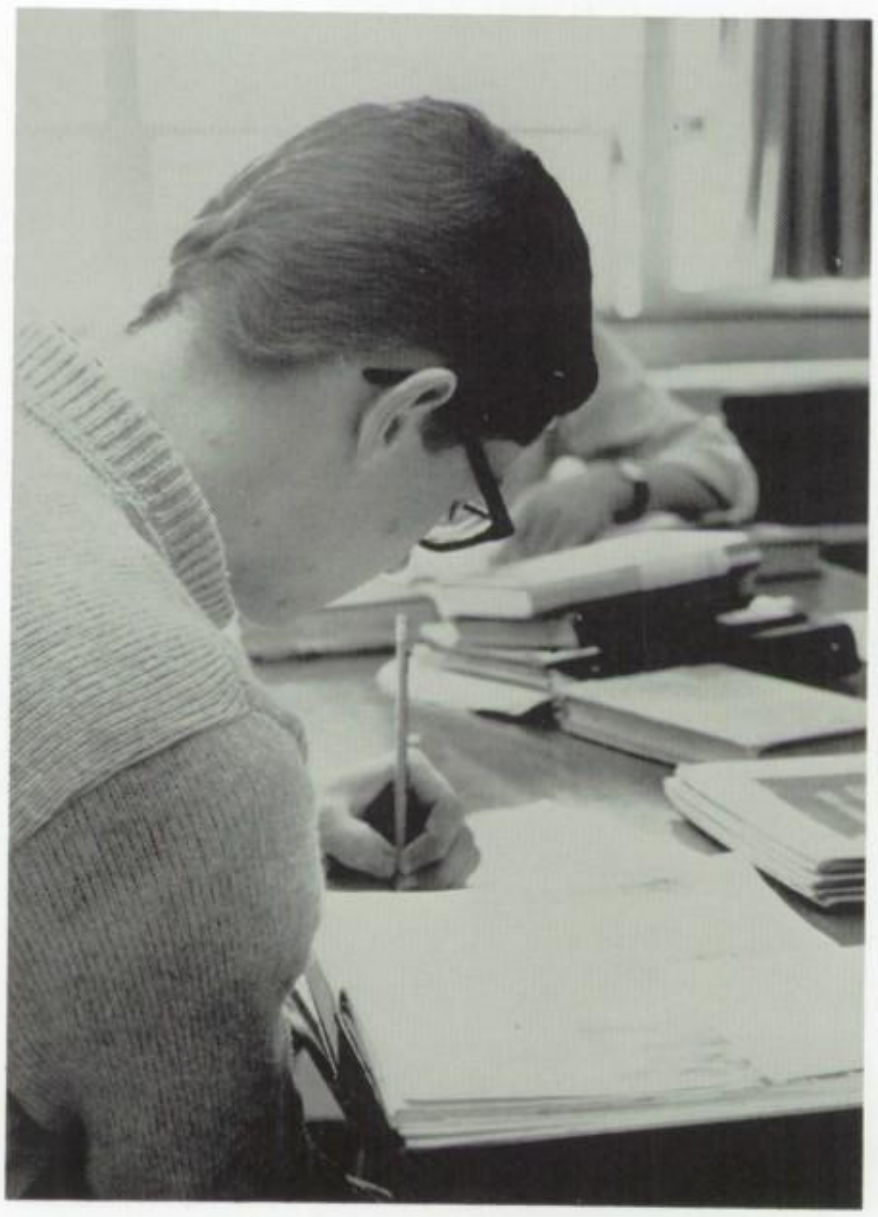
Routine Activities Comprise

Eastwood has traffic problems too, as students flow into the hallways between classes and maneuver their way to various parts of the building for the next class.



Mike Parrish crams in some last minute study.

"May I have your attention please for announcements?"

Much Of Every Student's Life

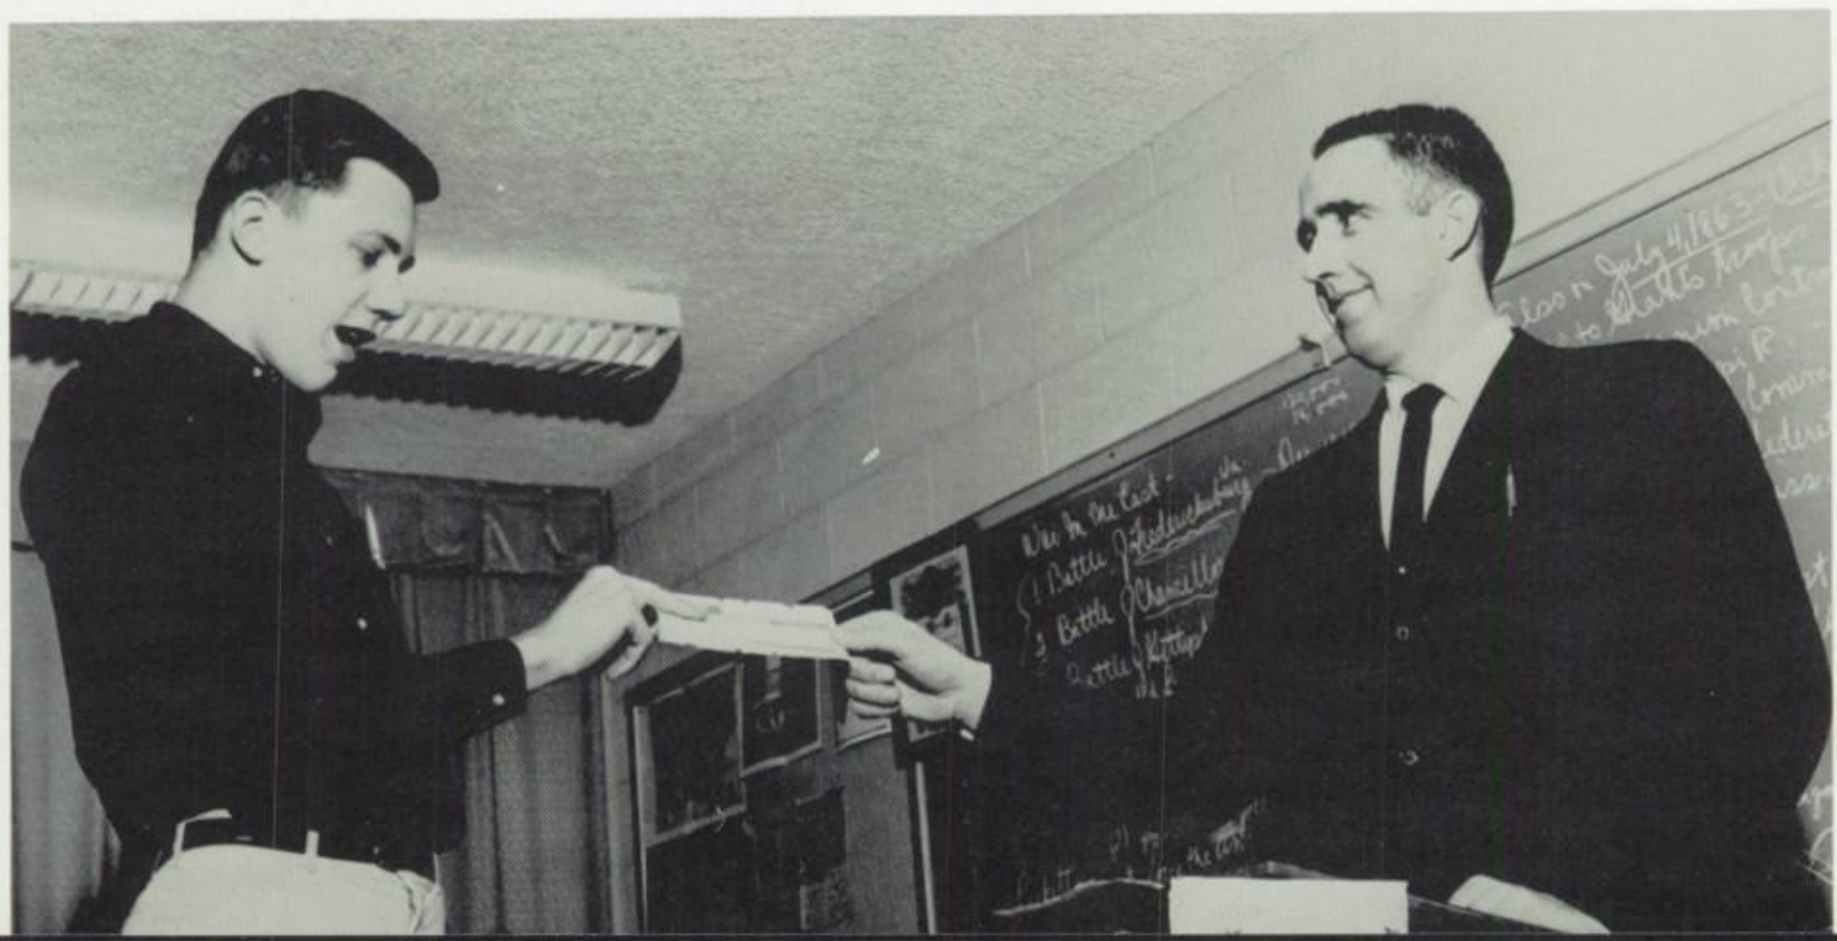
In a typical classroom, students concentrate on their assignments. Notehand is no exception.

Three periods of the day find students and teachers in the lunch line during the noon hour.

Although there are myriads of activities associated with school life, those most familiar to Eastwoodites are the routing engagements of the six-hour day of classes. Cramming for exams, standing in the lunch line, pushing through the halls between classes, and boarding the buses in going to and from school provide characteristic occurrences of the average day.

Of course, the greatest percentage of time is spent in class, doing homework, and attempting to improve grades, which are issued every six weeks. Thus, academics naturally receive the most emphasis in school life.

Mike Alexander apparently gets a pleasant shock as Mr. Nowlin gives out grades.



Homecoming Queens And Courts

Connie Thatcher, 1964 Homecoming Queen.

Attractive Connie Thatcher reigned over 1964 Football Homecoming festivities on October 2. Chosen by the student body, the popular blue-eyed senior appeared on the field smartly attired in a white wool dress with red accessories.

Escorted across the field to strains of "Miss America," Connie received the traditional silver crown from Dolly Kazmaier, 1963 queen, during pre-game ceremonies. Co-captains Dave Dennis and Steve Spahn then presented her with a bouquet of red roses and a pendant necklace.

Members of the court and their escorts were Lois Kahlenberg, senior, escorted by Norm Eckel; Carol Sander, junior, escorted by Ron Morlock; Barbara Fries, sophomore, escorted by Earl Jensen; and Kathy Hansen, freshman, escorted by Phillip Fogle. Connie was escorted by Gary Haas.

An enthusiastic crowd witnessed the coronation and the game which followed. Spirits ran high despite the cold weather and the fact that the Eagles fell by a narrow, 8-6 margin at the hands of the Anthony Wayne Generals.

Following the game, Queen Connie and her court were honored at a Homecoming dance held in the high school gymnasium.

Display Beauty, Charm, Grace

Pretty Diane Busdeker was crowned the 1965 Basketball Homecoming Queen on January 9 and reigned over the varsity game with Westwood.

Diane, and Mary Rolf, both senior candidates, had been chosen by their fellow classmates and then voted upon by the student body. The results were withheld until the coronation.

The queen and her court made their entrees to the music of "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" played by the pep band. Escorted down the floor, the court took their places for the crowning.

Applause burst out as Diane's name was announced, and she stepped forward to receive her crown from 1964 queen-candidate Sandra Cross. Co-captains Terry Holcomb and Gary Haas presented Queen Diane with a pendant and spray of red roses, and each bestowed her with a kiss.

The court consisted of Janet Sundermeier, freshman, escorted by Garold Thompson; Melany Thompson, sophomore, escorted by Bill Caughey; Cindy Merryfield, junior, escorted by David Dennis; and Mary Rolf, senior, escorted by Dwight Wilson. Diane's escort was Jim Lafferty.

The Eagles fulfilled Homecoming hopes by defeating Westwood 62-51. Festivities were topped off at a dance following the game.

Mrs. Sycamore catches Mr. De Pinna in his best form.

On November 21 and 22 Eastwood High School presented an all-school play entitled "You Can't Take It With You." Approximately 800 people attended the performances which were held in the high school auditorium.

Student Productions Group Presents

"You Can't Take It With You" was a hilarious situation between the Sycamore and the Kirby family in the late 1930's. The two families, who are completely different in every way, find themselves in more trouble in one evening than could be imagined.

Alice, the only rational member of the Sycamore family, falls in love with Tony, the son of the socially elite Kirby's. When Tony proposes, Alice becomes leery about accepting because she's afraid of what might happen when the two families meet. When the families do meet quite unexpectedly, trouble erupts and both families find themselves in jail.

Acting in the leads were Cindi Bowen, portraying Alice, and Allen Alexander, playing the part of Tony Kirby. Supporting roles were filled by Dennis Walston and Susan Schellhase.

Fifty-eight students took part in the production serving as ushers, cast or on the production staff. The play was under the direction of Miss Carole Huston.

Special Occasions And Assemblies Mold

Highlighting many of the activities centered around Eastwood High School are special convocations and occasions. One of the first of these is the election of class officers in September. Other student elections are also held during the year to select queens and homecoming attendants.

Eastwoodites eagerly antitipate the performances offered at school drama productions. Rehearsals for these also provide much of the activity around EHS for weeks prior to them.

Club initiations and parties add life to participation in extracurriculars.

Interspersed throughout the year are awards assemblies, Christmas programs, Teacher Appreciation Day, and a number of lyceum programs. These add exciting and interesting moments to the educational scene.

Homecoming attracts the largest athletic crowds as graduates return to renew acquaintances, and Eastwood crowns a new queen.

Pep Sessions And Bonfire

School spirit flared high at the bonfire rally.

Pep rallies are an important source of school spirit, providing Eastwoodites with enthusiasm and sparking Eagle athletes on to many victories.

The annual bonfire, held in the fall, fired up the student body for the football homecoming. During the regular seasons, pep sessions were conducted by the cheerleaders and various clubs. These were held every week as high schoolers filled the gymnasium to run through cheers and watch pep skits. Pep Week encouraged class rivalry and enhanced enthusiasm for basketball homecoming.

Eagle pep band performs at every home game.

Eagle Fight Song

Fight, fight you Eagles brave,
Win this game tonight,
We will cheer you on and on,
So fight you Eagles fight.
High spirit is our code,
Sportsmanship our goal;
Let's make our record shine so bright
And win this game tonight.

Students crowd the bleachers for a pep session.

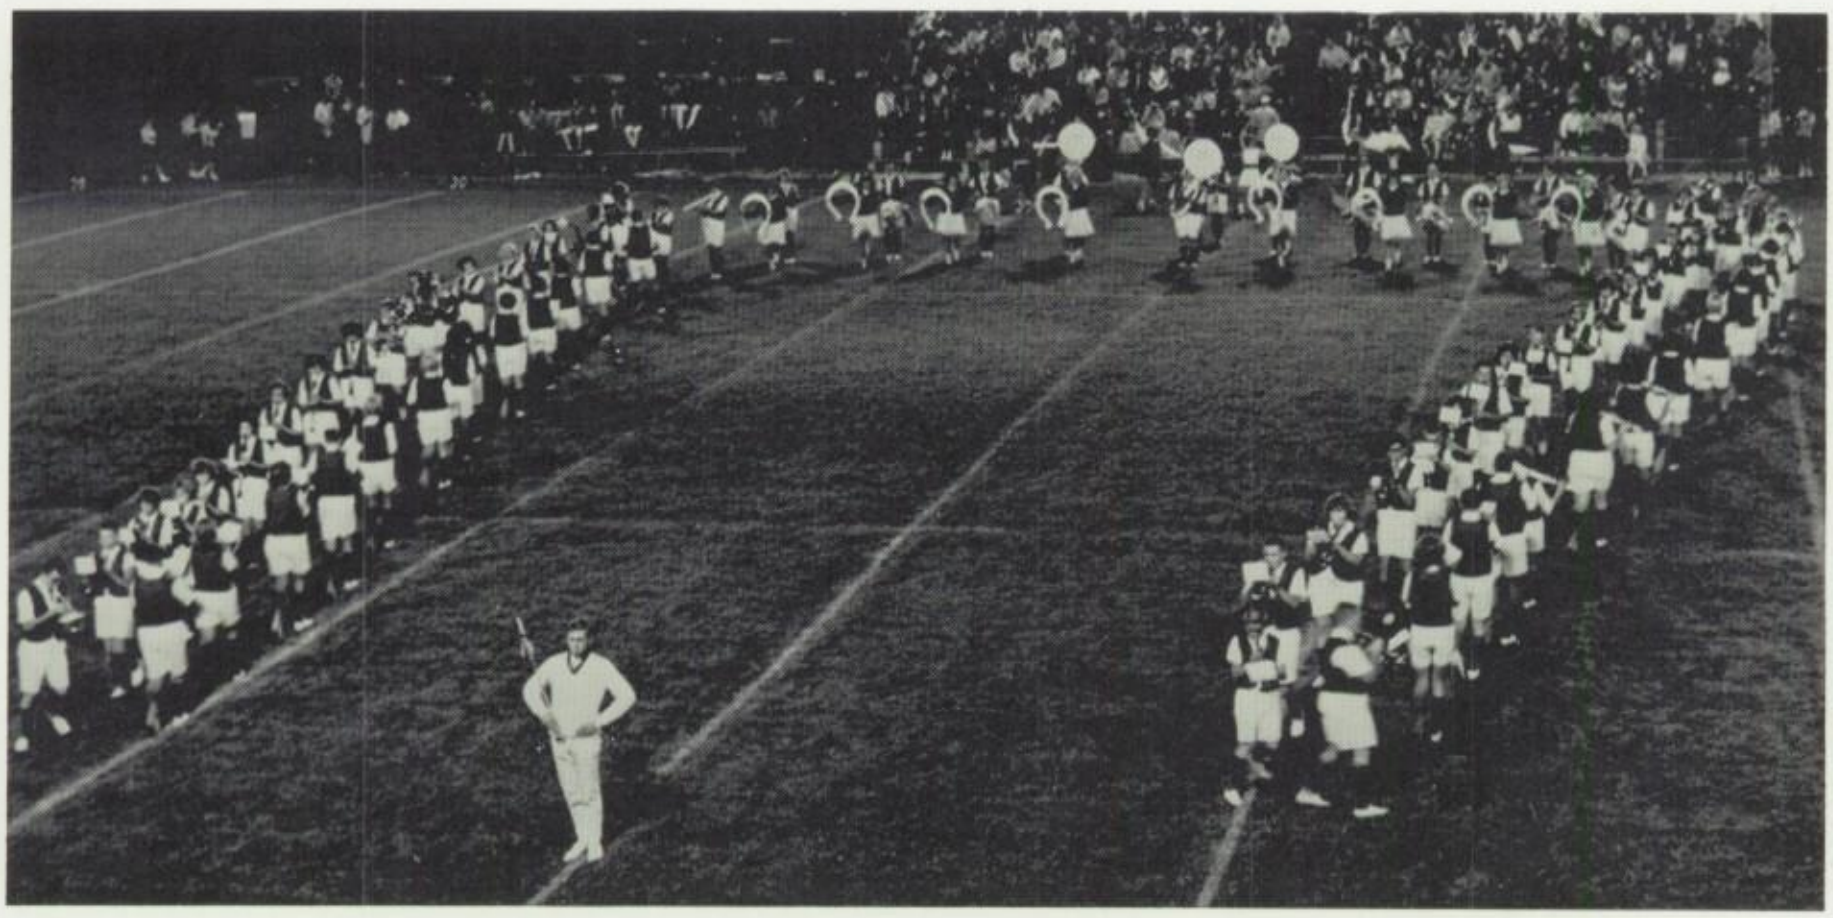
Life is far from being dull at Eastwood. There are always places to go and things to do. Band performances, athletic contests, special assemblies, and practice sessions offer a wide variety of entertainment and student activity.

This is the scope of curricular and extracurricular programs open to every Eastwoodite. This miscellany of diversified projects forms the core around which all phases of school life revolves.



One of the band shows features a horseshoe to bring the Eagles luck. Wonder if it works?

Education is, of course, the foremost objective of school life. Its importance cannot be overaccentuated. While it becomes a routine part of the school day, its recognition is often obscured by a myriad of other activities. However, because of its significance, academics has come to claim its rightful place in the AQUILA.

Eastwood provides a curricular program in four different fields: college-preparatory, business education, general, and vocational. College-preparatory is designed, of course, for those who plan to continue their academic work beyond high school. Majors in business education prepare students for employment in various business and secretarial occupations. Those enrolled in a generalized course of study may obtain a diversified education in a number of prescribed subjects. Vocational training in home economics, agriculture, or industrial arts also equips the individual with many skills essential to future occupational pursuits.

A total of sixty-four different courses are offered in thirteen areas of study in the humanities, arts, sciences, and trades. Additional courses are being added each year to accommodate the ever-growing emphasis on better education. At the same time, requirements and the curriculum program are being revised to provide a more effective academic system.

These factors silhouette a trademark of excellence at Eastwood - Academics.

For More Effective Communication

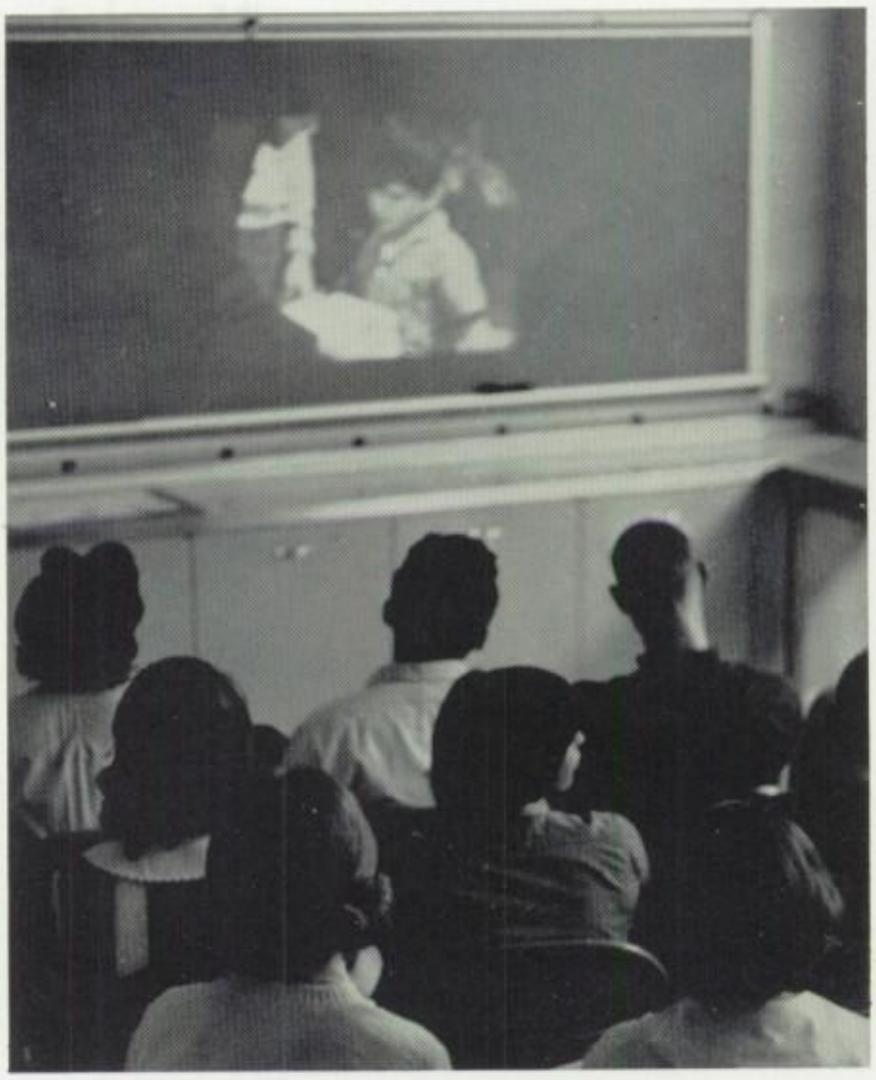
Proficient and accurate use of language is an integral part of today's society. Whether through speech or journalistic endeavors, one must have the power of expression close at hand. The study of languages provides the essential elements to accomplish these arts effectively.

ENGLISH, SPEECH, and JOURNALISM teach the fundamentals of writing, speaking, and reading in the native language of English. Literature, public address, composition, and newspaper writing are but a few of the numerous facets covered by these courses.

LATIN and FRENCH acquaint the individual with the customs and culture of other countries as well as supplying the basics for more advanced study of these and other related Romance languages.

With the increased emphasis on linguistics, EHS broadened its curriculum by the addition of SPANISH. Using the modern visual-audio-lingual technique students are taught the language.

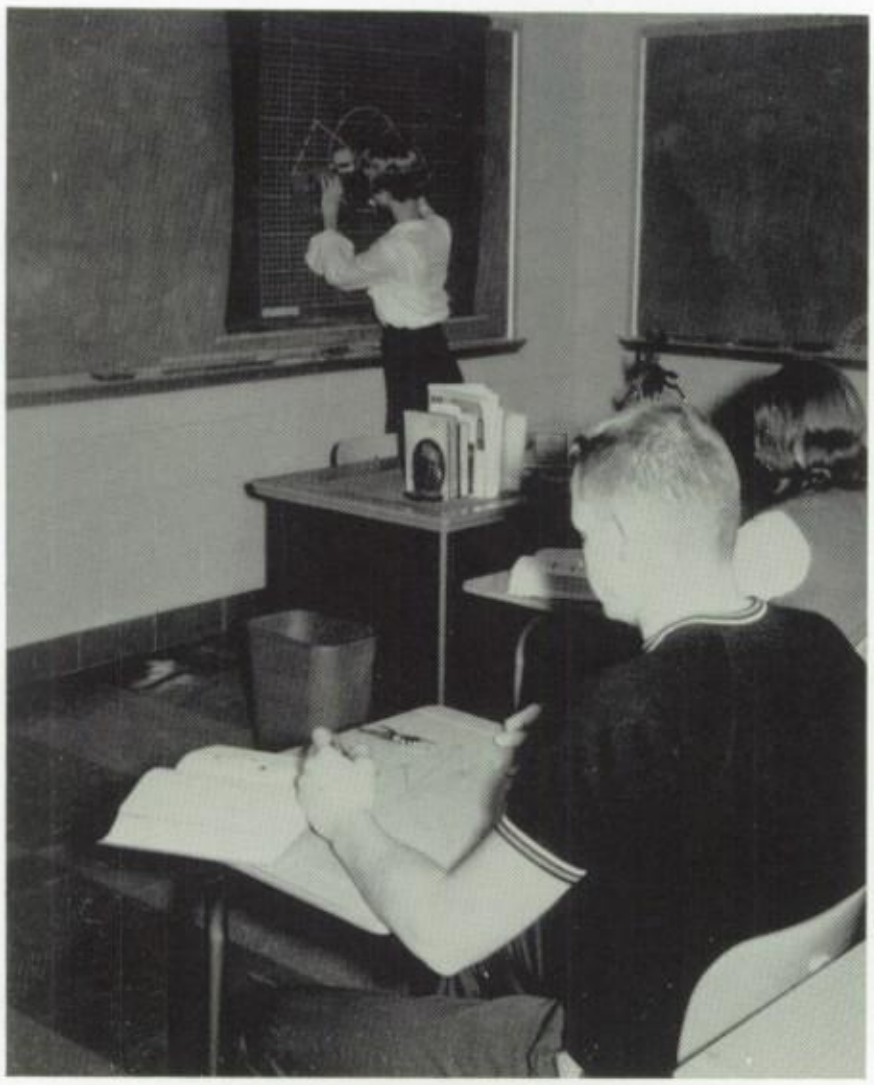
The study of DRAMA, while not directly a grammatical course, develops acting ability. Teaching expression through theatrics, it deals with staging and presentation of plays.



Spanish films supply teaching medium.

Speech class practices fundamentals of debate as L. Busdecker presents the plan.

Math Develops Aptitude In Reasoning



Geometry students diagram problems.

In a modern world of IBM, Univac, and calculators, numbers and figures have achieved an increasing significance. It becomes important that every student have a knowledge of math, as they will be faced with varied problems in their future careers.

The courses of study differ according to the individual need of each student, from those who plan to advance their learning in fields such as engineering, to those who plan to enter the business world.

Students preparing themselves for college are required to take ALGEBRA I and II. Those wishing to better themselves in higher mathematics may take GEOMETRY, TRIGONOMETRY, and solid geometry, which are taught by Miss Helen Rolfesand Mr. Earl Matthews.

In addition to the math that is offered for these college bound students, math is also offered for students who do not plan to enter college. These students may take GENERAL MATH I, GENERAL MATH II, and SENIOR MATH. These courses are taught by Mr. Richard Balthaser, Mr. Richard Welniak, and Mrs. Catherine Contini, respectively.

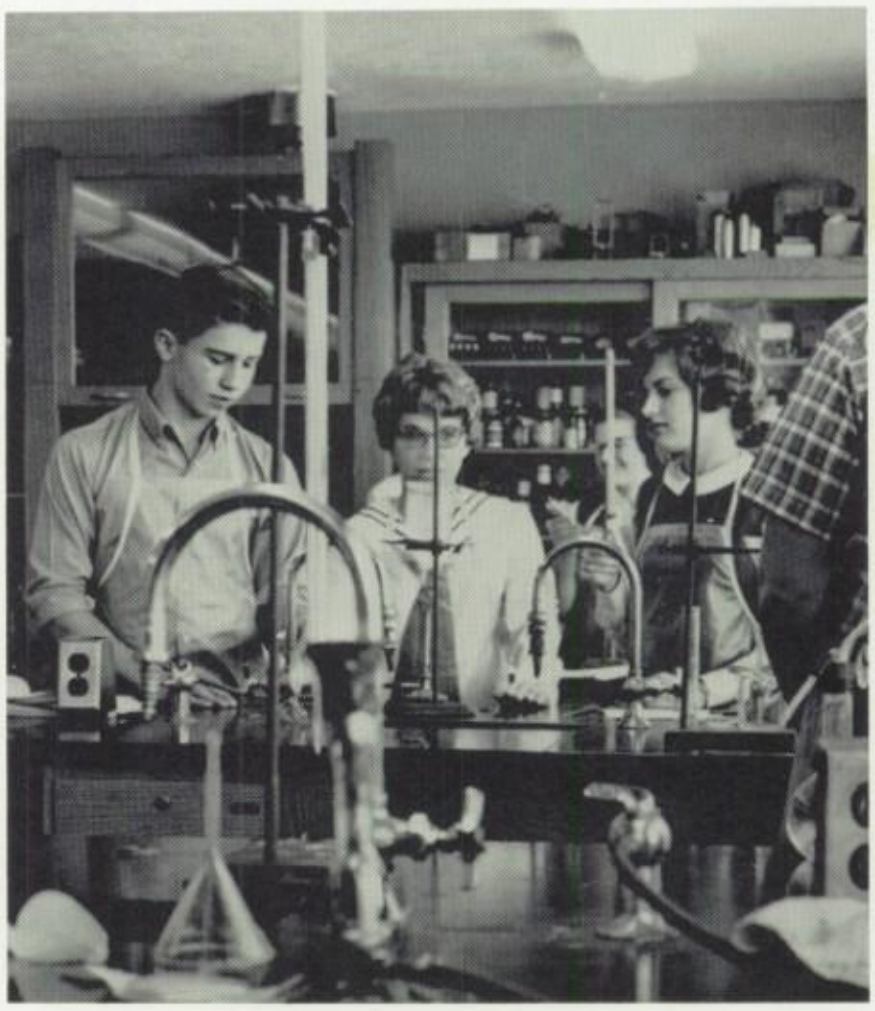
As the world of today progresses, there are many fields where science is not only required but quite necessary for further advancement. To make the students more prepared, many levels of science are taught.

As a freshman either GENERAL SCIENCE or BIOLOGY must be taken. GENERAL SCIENCE deals with the fundamentals of various sciences and is taught by Mr. Clarence Heckman. Mrs. Catherine Contini and Mr. Doyce Filiere instruct BIOLOGY, which is the study of the structure and function of living organisms.

Young scientists who wish to continue their education in this field may enroll in CHEMISTRY, PHYSICS, and ADVANCED CHEMISTRY. These studies instructed by Mr. Earl Matthews and Mr. Clarence Heckman give a greater insight into physical and chemical compositions, electronics, and modern nuclear theories.

SENIOR SCIENCE is an advanced course offered to those seniors who do not plan to attend college following graduation. Mr. Filiere also teaches this course.



Young scientists perform titration experiment.

Social Sciences Link Past With Present

Under the academic heading of social sciences come the courses known as history and family life. ANCIENT HISTORY, the earliest course available to pupils, is taught by Mr. Russell Nowlin. This covers the life and culture of early societies. Attention is focused on the medieval foundation of modern civilizations.

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT, also taught by Mr. Nowlin, emphasizes the value of American democratic government. Overall, it is a local and international study of politics.

AMERICAN HISTORY, taught by Mr. Dale Bruning, is the complete history of the United States. It traces the steps of the settlers and founders in establishing our present form of government.

Courses teaching family life include SOCIOLOGY and FAMILY LIVING. Mr. Dale Bruning teaches SOCIOLOGY, which attempts to prepare the students for the responsibilities of marriage, family, and community citizenship. FAMILY LIVING, which is taught by Mrs. Margaret Harruff, is a study of the duties and obligations of family life.

Eastwood High school offers a complete course in business education for those who plan to become secretaries, stenographers, and office workers.

To help them obtain the necessary background, a thorough program begins with typing. Mrs. Margaret Filiere teaches both TYPING I and II. Another important part is BOOKKEEPING I and II instructed by Mrs. Barbara Juergens, who also teaches BUSINESS LAW. Those interested in speed writing may take SHORTHAND I and II under the instruction of Mrs. Filiere and Miss Shirley Reese. To assist business majors, GENERAL BUSINESS, which is taught by Mr. Richard Welniak, is available.

When these students graduate they have formed a firm basis for entering the business field.

Industrial-Vocational Courses

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE is a study of farm mechanics, livestock, and other activities. Within this course are many subdivisions which help to make farming profitable.

Under Mr. Ben Saunders' guidance, they learn how to keep accurate records, in which they analyze their work to see what the returns are. They also perform shop and classroom work. One of their projects is caring for the farm acreage on the school's property. Here they experiment to find better methods of production.

To further their knowledge, Vo-Ag students participate in many outside field trips. One of these is a visit to the experimental farm at Wooster, Ohio. They also take many tours to view their classmate's projects.

In first year Vo-Ag, students learn about the phases of farming primarily through classroom discussions. Later they move on to shop work, supplementing their advancement in class work. Finally, they work up to farm management.

Cultivate Useful Skills

When walking past the Industrial Art display case, one may often observe the projects of the INDUSTRIAL ARTS classes. It may contain sketches, pictorial, drawing, or sheet-metal drafting. All are a part of MECHANICAL DRAWING I. They are instructed by Mr. Adolph Madaras. Other classes such as MECHANICAL DRAWING II have displays emphasizing architectural and other mechanical drawings.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS I, II, and III puts the greatest emphasis on wood working and the use of power tools. Students also weld, do repair work, and finish and refinish articles. Under the direction of Mr. Alfred Behrendsen and Mr. Madaras, they also learn useful skills by working on practical projects during their free time.

These subjects equip students with useful training in the fields of carpentry, architecture, or blueprint designing. This gives them the thorough knowledge that they will need for careers in today's world and allows them to make many articles which will be useful to them.

Music And Creative Arts

Ensembles develop further talents.

Music at Eastwood is made up of CHORUS, led by Mr. Mark Deerwester, and BAND, taught by Mr. Lawrence McCormic. Both are recognized as essential academic courses and helpful to balancing the individual's cultural background.

Boys, girls, and mixed chorus are among those given as electives. However, those with special abilities may also be selected for ensembles.

Band, which includes both marching and concert, also adds to the appreciation of music by arousing pep through the school with their vigorous show tunes and snappy marches.

CAROLL HALLEY

Mrs. Caroll Halley extends knowledge in ART I and II. The techniques of drawing, printing, and sculpture with paper, wire and clay, are taught the students. In addition, painting, ceramics, lettering, and color scheming are learned. A stress is also put on the study of famous artists and changes in art form.

In advanced art, students are introduced to floral arrangement, home decorating, and designing. This is supplemented by continuation of art history and art projects. The artist is given a better understanding of art, and taught to improve the culture of the individual.

MARGARET HARRUFF

Mrs. Margaret Harruff heads the HOME ECONOMICS department by giving the students a thorough knowledge in sewing and cooking. They also receive additional information in home management, dating, child care, budgeting and cosmetics. These help to develop better personal grooming habits.

During the year, these future homemakers gave a tea for the teachers. They also baked treats for the teachers to enjoy.

Each student was required to develop a home project which would improve her learning. Field trips to industries highlighted the year and supplemented the course.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION actively develops the body as well as the mind, for it encourages sportsmanship and mental and physical hygiene. Along with this comes a pride in athletic accomplishments and a zeal for hard work.

Miss Carole Huston conducts the girls' physical education classes by instructing them in volleyball, softball, badminton, archery, track, field hockey, and basketball. In all these subjects, the latest techniques of the sport are taught.

Boys are under the instruction of Mr. Edison Barney. Activities include many of the same as the girls, but, in addition to this, dodgeball, crab soccer, wrestling, cage ball, and stiff rounds of calisthenics prevail.

Because of the increased emphasis in this country on physical conditioning, this program is advanced to offer every possible advantage to the student in his physical development. Eastwood helps him meet these standards.

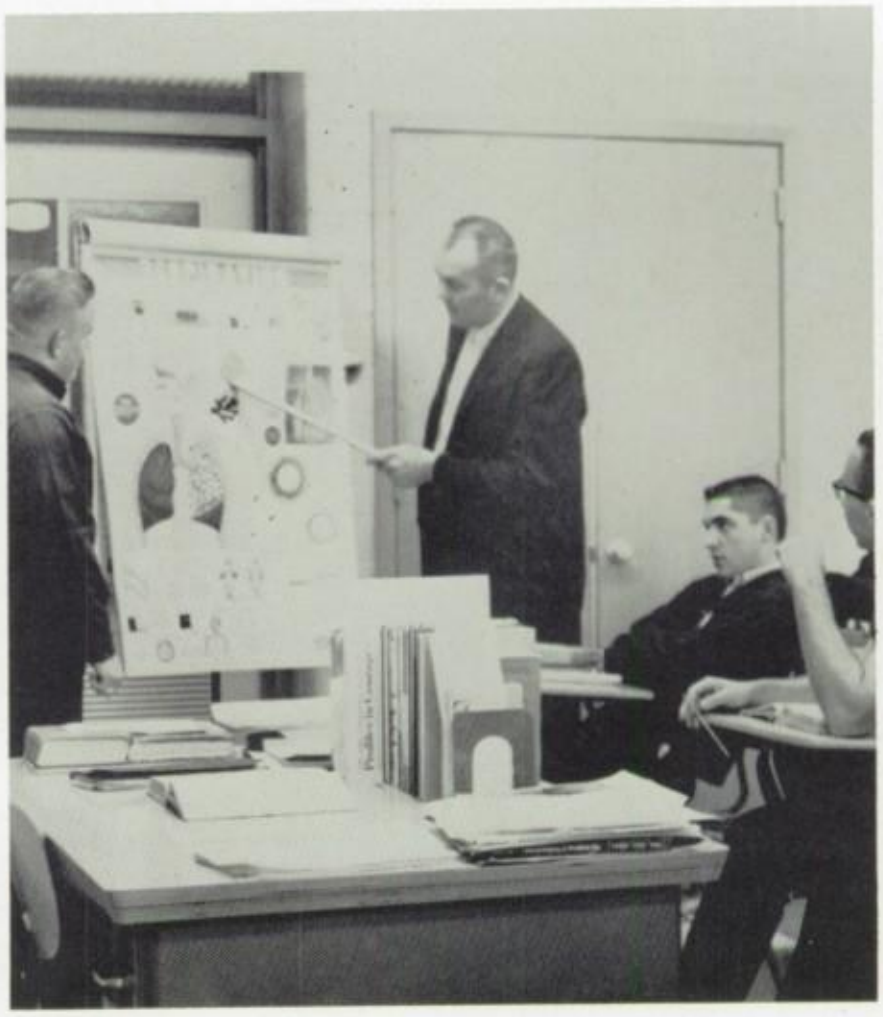
Health And Safety Instill Good Habits

HEALTH, a complete study of social, mental, and physical well-being, is a required course for graduation. Formerly a senior course, health was taught to all students this year as the curriculum was changed.

Through this course, students learn the functions of the body organs, composition of the blood, and the structural make up of the bones, nerves, and muscles. The major diseases, how to prevent them, and their cure are also studied along with subjects on posture, first aid, and social problems.

Miss Carole Huston teaches girls' health, and Mr. Edison Barney instructs boys' health for underclassmen. Seniors receive a more thorough study of these courses from Mrs. Mary Kuhlman and Mr. Adolph Madaras.

JESS HAMILTON



Mr. Madaras explains health chart.

Sue Frost buckles up before driving.

With a great majority of today's automobile accidents happening in the teenage group, it is necessary that a program be established to curb this increase. At Eastwood such a program, DRIVERS EDUCATION, is available.

Through this course, students learn the rules of operating a car, and discuss the parts of an engine and how they produce power for movement. The class is visited by a local insurance agent who suggests what factors to consider before purchasing insurance. A detailed study of what to do during an accident and movies showing the results of careless driving are provided by the State Highway Patrol.

The class then moves outside where they are shown how to keep the car in good working condition. Gradually they are allowed to get first-hand experience on the road. While the students are driving, the instructor, Mr. Jess Hamilton, watches carefully and corrects any faults they may have acquired.

This entire phase is provided in an earnest attempt to make safer and more conscientious drivers of students.

In producing a picture, there must be a source of light. In picturing the school year, the same principle holds true. Administration is that source; it provides the guiding light which leads every student through his high school career. It illuminates the roads to Knowledge, Citizenship, and Ability.

The faculty are most directly connected to this phase of school life. Yet the teachers themselves are dependent upon the operation of the school system as directed by the superintendent and the principals. The administrators are responsible for the smooth function of every cog in the curricular and extracurricular machinery at Eastwood. Theirs is a continuous task of solving difficulties which arise and performing many routine duties pertinent to their jobs. Included in these are schedule planning, individual guidance, and supervision of school affairs. Personal counseling is available to students at any time during the school day.

Another vitally important part of the picture are the personnel who furnish services necessary to the schools. These include the bus drivers, secretaries, cooks, and custodians.

Finally, yet perhaps of primary importance, administration includes the board of education. It is this body of conscientious citizens which formulates the policy and transmit the business of Eastwood School district.

It is by these sources of light that the Aquila may silhouette the Administration.

Music is a multi-faceted phase of the Eastwood curriculum. As such, it also boasts of being the largest department. Each of the two major divisions, instrumental and choral, consist of more than one hundred musicians.

Concert band and marching band comprise the greater part of instrumental music. However, subordinate brass and woodwind sectionals, dance and pep bands, ensemble groups, and soloists enhance the program and provide further appreciation. Each of these assumes its place according to the particular type of music played and those involved. All have achieved increased academic, entertaining, and organizational significance under the direction of Mr. Lawrence McCormic.

Vocal music, under the direction of Mr. Mark Deerwester, is equally important to Eastwoodites. Choir, girls' and boys' chorus, and a number of ensembles are involved in this phase. These also thrive on an active schedule of rehearsals and performances.

The band and chorus are continually at work trying to excel. In reaching for this goal, they put in many extra hours of practice. Contests contribute to the necessity of this busy schedule, and high ratings attest to its value. Two annual concerts and the musical provide opportunities for the public to witness the result of an accelerated music program.

This is the silhouette of music - a picture of excellence, activity, and learning.

Marching Eagles perform one of many band formations.

Eastwood's Marching Eagles took the field on September 11 for their first football half-time show of the season. Following many weeks of strenuous and diligent practice sessions, the band was in top form as they presented a tribute to the United Nations.

Experienced by summer performances in the Strawberry Festival in Holland, the Firemen's Parade in Deshler, and the Wood County and Pemberville Fairs, the members displayed confidence as they marched through four different shows covering nine games.

A performance at the Defiance Homecoming captured a third place trophy for the Eagle Band, their second in two years.

Graduating seniors were honored by the Band in the final pre-game show. A banquet was held after the season honoring all Marching Eagles.

The Band was led by its first drum major, Steve Marks, and was directed by Mr. Lawrence McCormic, head of instrumental music.

Practicing during the winter and spring months, the Eastwood High School Concert Band worked diligently to prepare for concerts and contest. On December 11, the Christmas Concert was presented. A pops concert, held May 7, was another great event for band members. The band also held exchange concerts with some neighboring schools.

The main objective of the band was contest. This year, contest was held on March 20 at BGSU. The selections performed were "Dance Suite", "Good Daughter Overture" and "Coat Of Arms".

In addition to having practice very day during school, the participants of band held sectionals at least once a week. At the sectionals, the members rehearsed thir parts, trying to correct their individual errors.

Under the direction of Mr. Lawrence McCormic, the band took great strides in improvement, as approximately 95 musicians attempted to build a better music program for Eastwood.

Chorus members meet two to four times a week to harmonize for up-coming concerts or for their own enjoyment under the direction of Mr. Mark Deerwester.

The chorus groups are Mixed Chorus, containing seventy members, Girls Chorus, containing sixty members and Boys Chorus, containing fifteen members.

Participation in any of the nine extra choral groups required a lot of time and effort on the part of the students themselves. Mr. Deerwester took time out from a busy schedule to work with the ensembles every week.

Under the supervision of Mr. Deerwester, head of the choral department, Miss Carole Huston, Dramatics advisor, and Mr. Lawrence McCormic, orchestra director, the music department produced "The Sound of Music". This created a great deal of enthusiasm among the students who participated in the production.

COMBINED DOUBLE MIXED

Each of the ensembles stayed after school one night a week to practice with Mr. Deerwester.

There were nine ensembles in all consisting of Senior I and II, Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen I and II. These units contained nine girls each. Senior and junior mixed ensembles contained four boys and four girls each.

An interest and enjoyment in singing is the only requirement to be eligible for an ensemble.

These groups sang at concerts and an occasional school assembly, such as the Christmas program presented to the student body by the drama class.

Initiative to work harder was created by the competition between the boys and girls in these ensembles. The hope of getting an "I" at contest in the spring also aided in working harder to achieve that goal.

Extracurricular activities compose much of the school life of each student. They consist of many organizations with as many different objectives. These clubs meet for the purposes of service, recreation, intellectual development, appreciation of arts, and production of student publications.

Art club and literary society were added to the list of existing organizations. These, along with the others, occupy many after-school hours and offer activities to all who wish to participate. There is no limit to the number of clubs in which students may be active.

These extra activities are invaluable in broadening the educational experience of Eastwood pupils. They teach sportsmanship, cooperation, public speaking, photography, dramatics, agriculture, student government, music, literature, publication, and many other skills and qualities which cannot always be acquired from the text book. Although club meetings sometimes seem to occupy many additional hours, most students believe it is time swell spent.

These clubs and activities are the components of the silhouettes of organization.

Publication of the '65 Aquila involved many long hours in the making. Efforts were underway for this publication before school convened in September, as staff members were announced at the close of the 1963-64 school year.

Steven Marks, editor, and Robert Bomlitz, business manager attended the High School Journalism Institute at Indiana University during July. At the Institute the boys learned proper yearbook techniques and later put this knowledge into practice.

Soliciting for the advertising section began in August This was carried on by the business staff and division editors, who contacted the businessmen in our area.

Division editors set to work laying out rough drafts, choosing cover color and design, and setting up the pages to meet their deadlines. An assembly was held to promote the sales campaign and acquaint the student body with the features of the new book.

Instrumental in conducting student council and government at Eastwood is the Student Council. The council provided for registration at the beginning of each semester, which permitted students to vote in school elections. It was kept busy throughout the year sponsoring both homecomings, Parents' Night, a food and clothing drive near Thanksgiving, and several other activities.

The council was under the leadership of Margaret Hiser, president; Linda Graffice, vice-president; Linda Hetrick, secretary; and Linda Gallier, treasurer; who were elected by the student body in the spring of 1964. The advisors were Mrs. Barbara Juergens and Mr. Dale Bruning.

Representatives were elected by the student body. Each class elects one member for every 30 students. It is the duty of the elected students to represent their classmates in bringing about better school relations and solving many of the problems arising in daily school life.

Future Teachers of America is composed of students and teachers who work together to promote teaching as a career and to direct students in the proper methods of teaching.

Substitute teaching acquaints members with the responsibilities and accomplishments of being a teacher. Future Teachers acquire experience in the elementary grades, junior high, and high schools, by grading papers, and by assisting teachers in various other class activities.

At the meetings there are guest speakers, usually teachers, who share many of their experiences with the students. Movies are also shown at the meetings. A joint county meeting was planned this year in which chapters of different schools met at Otsego High School to exchange ideas.

Meetings were held the first and third Tuesdays of each month. Mrs. Cornell and Mr. Balthaser acted as club sponsors.

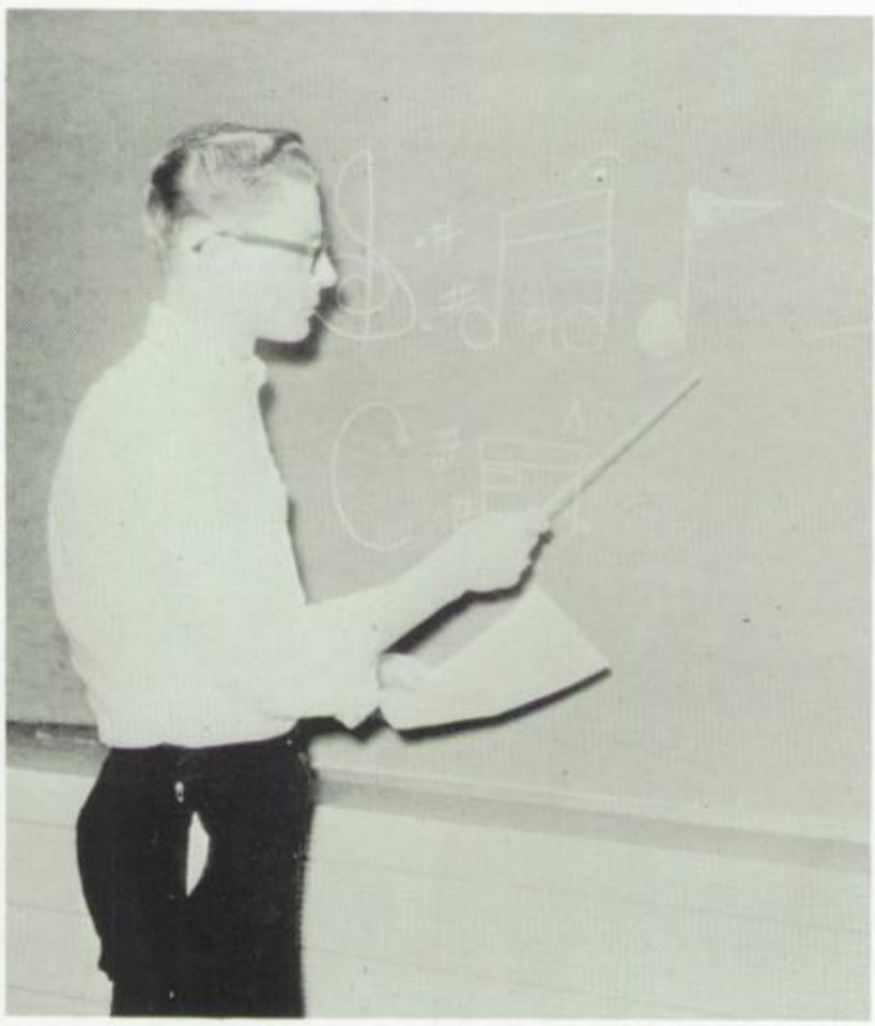
Music Appreciation Theme Of Arion Club



Arion Club, which derives its name from Greek mythology, met the first Monday of every month. Its members were limited to juniors and seniors who participated in choral work.

The business was conducted by Gayle Lohrbach, president, and the advisor Mr. Deerwester. Linda Graffice was vice-president with Fareal Brinker as secretary and Judy Buchman as treasurer. At the meetings the current business was followed by a topic on some aspect of music. The topics ranged from a synopsis of the life of Ludwig von Beethoven to listening to jazz church services. The meetings were concluded by refreshments and a social hour. Arion Club also attended concerts and musical plays. Their outings varied from a concert by Ferrante and Teicher to the musical by Lerner and Leowe "My Fair Lady."

Choral students enjoyed participating in Arion Club because they gained a deeper appreciation for music. They also broadened their musical knowledge by listening to assorted varieties of music and learning more about musical heritage and music theory.

Sic Sic Sez Keeps School Spirit High

TOP ROW: K. Layman, M. Amerson. STANDING: M. Shaffer, C. Ladd, J. Nollenberger, Mrs. Halley. KNEELING: L. Camp.

Sic Sic Sez is a select secret organization that tries to increase school spirit. A few days before an athletic game, posters, displays, and decorations would appear suddenly over night - compliments of Sic Sic Sez.

Once a week posters would be hung in the halls and classrooms. Blackboards advocating an Eastwood victory would greet the students the following morning.

Mrs. Carol Halley was the group advisor and contributed many hours of work for the group. Members were selected by Mr. Richard Lowrie, high school principal.

The Sic Sic Sez greatly contributed to the school spirit, which is the backbone of a school's morale.

Forensics Cultivate Oral Presentation

S. Fahle explains principle of debate.

One of Eastwood's most active organizations this year was the Forensic Society, originally called the Debate Club. Eastwood's society is a member of the Ohio High School Speech League and the National Speech League, which affiliates it with those all over the United States.

Contests are open in seven categories: debate, extemporaneous speaking, oratorical declamation, humorous declamation, original oratory, radio braodcasting, and poetry reading.

During the year debaters participated in Sylvania and Anthony Wayne high school meets, Capital and Bowling Green State University tournaments.

The society conducted a program on November 3 concerning the Presidential election issues. Debaters represented both sides of the party platforms as advocated by the candidates. Mr. Wayne Ambrose was debate coach and Mr. Edison Barney coached individual events. The business of Forensics Society was handled by Sandra Fahle, president; Dale Stickle, vice-president; Susan Bockbrader, secretary; Tye Henschen, treasurer.

FIRST ROW: D. Stickel, S. Bockbrader, T. Henschen, Mr. Barney, Mr. Ambrose. SECOND ROW: S. Fahle, N. Amos, C. Bowen, V. Hankinson, J. Buchman, M. Durbin, B. Brown, J. Nollenburger. THIRD ROW: S. Drama Instills Theatrics Interest

Drama Club was organized to assist play director, Miss Carole Huston, in the musical and the dramas presented throughout the year.

In drama, the members became more aware of the behind-the-stage actions of everything from changing scenery to curing the numerous stage-frightened performers on opening night.

Lighting problems and techniques were studied, so that better methods could be used on their productions.

They were faced with many challenging and difficult problems which they overcame to benefit them in future plays.

During the season, the group observed several current plays. They also watched a movie of a play which they had presented earlier. Here they became better aware of what really goes into making a successful play.

The club proved handy by working on stage crews, lighting, make-up and several served on the play casts.

Eastwood's chapter of the Future Farmers of America is one of the most active organizations of the school. The club, affiliated with the vocational agriculture program, stresses the importance and correct methods of better farming.

Twelve members of the local chapter attended the National Convention in Kansas City during the week of October 7-11. Representatives were also sent to the state convention in Columbus during May. Main activities of the club included public speaking, soil and meat judging, and parliamentary procedure contests. An excursion of the FFA took the boys to Pokagon, Indian, for a day of tobogganing. Seed sales provided a money raising project.

The officers of the FFA were Lee Sundermeier, president; Arlyn Brinker, vice-president; Wilson Lahman, secretary; Terry Hummel, treasurer; Ronald Moenter, sentinel; and John Linter, reporter. The advisor of the local chapter was Mr. Ben Saunders. This executive committee met before each monthly meeting to plan the club's projects.

Photography Practiced In Click Clique Club

Student photographers turn out excellent pictures in high school darkroom.

"Click Clique Club," formerly known as the Camera Club, has expanded its activities considerably over the last year.

The objectives of the club are to cultivate an interest in the art of photography and to teach the principles of developing and processing film. These goals have been accomplished largely as a result of practical experience. All of the twenty members of the club have an opportunity to prepare their own developing solutions and carry out darkroom procedures. The purchase of new processing equipment was one of the first and most beneficial projects of the year.

Activities during the year included the photographing of a number of school functions, the making of picture Christmas cards, and the developing of films. Some members also worked in conjunction with the Aquila Staff.

Dennis Walston presided over club meetings and activities. Other officers were Clarence Thompson, vice-president; Steven Marks, secretary; and Robert Bomlitz, treasurer. Mr. Alfred Behrendsen acted as advisor to the "Click Clique Club."

Eagle's Eye Supplies News Medium

Eastwood High School's main branch of communication with the district, the "Eagle's Eye," was proudly printed in the 1964-65 school year by the Journalism II class under the supervision and guidance of Mrs. Margaret Fahle and Miss Shirley Reese.

A total of sixteen issues were published by the three staff members. Various activities of the high school, junior high, elementary, and district were brought to the attention and interest of the reading public through the reporting of the staff.

A total 2200 copies of the newspaper were printed and distributed throughout the district twice each month. Papers were also exchanged with neighboring schools.

Staff reporters gathered news enthusiastically every day from the Senior High and all other buildings in the district.

The "Eagle's Eye" competes annually against other high school papers from Northwestern Ohio at the Spring Journalism Day at Bowling Green State University. The "Eagle's Eye" has received a superior rating since 1959 and was a trophy winner in 1960 and 1963.

Eastwood's varsity club reorganized this year under the name of "Varsity E Club." The purpose of the club is to promote athletics among the members of the student body. Any varsity letter winner is eligible to join the club. This year the club adopted a constitution and elected the following officers: Dave Dennis, president; Terry Holcomb, vice-president; Bob Wilson, secretary; Vernon Ward, treasurer; Jim Lafferty, sergeant-at-arms; and John Kohring, reporter. The advisers are the head coaches of the five varsity sports.

The club meets regularly every other Friday. The club has established a standard "Varsity E Club" blazer and purchased crests for them. One major social function is sponsored by the club each year. The club raises its funds by selling ice cream during the lunch periods and by selling programs and helping the faculty at basketball games.

Seniors Discuss Great Novels

Initiated this year, the Senior Literary Society was designed to acquaint pupils with a knowledge of great books. Discussions of literature and authors were conducted by the students themselves under the guidance of Mrs. Mary Kuhlman.

At each meeting of the Society, two chosen members gave a review on the book they had been assigned. Some of these books were "Murder In The Cathedral" by T. S. Eliot, "Old Man And The Sea" by Ernest Hemingway and "The Good Earth" by Pearl S. Buck. The group then discussed such points as the author's style, word choice, the plot and any symbolism that was used in the novels. Critical reviews of the above points were given.

In addition to the discussions, the thirteen member club attended several local productions of well-known books. Members have seen such productions as "Our Town" and "Becket."

'Senatus Populusque Romanus', more commonly known as the Latin Club, is an organization open to students with at least one year of Latin. The club is designed to promote a more thorough knowledge of Roman life, customs, and language and to further understanding of the practical and cultural values of Latin.

The lamp of the Vestal Virgins is the insignia of the SPQR, the club colors are purple and white. Judi Buchman is Pontifex Maxima; Herbert Garns, consul; Karen Brinker, censor; Mark Schulte, quaestor; Gail Meder, Tribune; Jane Busdeker, Aedile; Linda Aufdencamp, news reporter. Advisors to the group were Mrs. Adeline Ridenour and Mrs. Cletus Sheffler.

Movies on Roman life, plays put on by the members, and visits to Roman displays at the Toledo Art Museum constituted some of the year's activities.

Finale of the year was a Roman banquet. The costumes and meal were in keeping with typical Roman styles. First year members served as slaves.

Good libraries always have good staffs; Eastwood is no exception. The fourteen efficient librarians under the direction of Mrs. Jeanette Cornell, head librarian, manage the library and are kept busy checking out books, helping with references, placing books on the proper shelves and keeping the numerous magazines and newspapers in order. They are on hand every day from the beginning of first period until the library closes eighth period.

Eastwood houses 2,729 books, 6 sets of encyclopedias, 6 unabridged dictionaries and various other reference materials which are the constant responsibility of these librarians.

The athlete is a strange breed of many special skills and traits. He must be rugged, quick, and coordinated. He needs endurance, determination, and spirit. Agility and coordination of mind and thought, as well as body, are called for in most performances. The degree of attainment and the right combination of these characteristics quite often determines the emergence of an individual as an outstanding athlete.

Achieving status as an athlete is a considerable task. It demands long hours of practice sessions, continual workouts to develop greater skill, and earnest, all-out effort in a contest. Despite all this, an individual is at times called on to accept defeat. This he must take in stride and resolve to work even harder the next time.

Sweat, pain, exhaustion, disappointment--these are common experiences of an athlete. Nervous moments before a big game, tnese sessions in the huddle, and impatient waiting on the bench or at the sidelines are a part of the life of every player. Even the cooling-off period in the showers after a meet is eagerly anticipated.

Yet these things do not stand foremost in the mind of a true athlete. The effort must be put forth to produce the winning combination. The aching muscles are expected, yet are scarcely noticed when the athlete feels he has accomplished his goals. Their personal reward of achievement excels all other feelings by far.

Determination, pride, sacrifice, spirit, achievement --these are all a part of the silhouette which is cast by an athlete.

Tough League Opponents

In its first encounter of the season, Eastwood captured its primary football victory against the Perrysburg Yellowjackets, with two thrilling touchdowns in the final minute.

The Lake game found the Eagles trailing 6-0 in the final half. In the third quarter, the Eagles took the ball on their own 19-yard line and drove 81 yards only to be stopped on the 6-inch line, accepting a crushing 6-0 defeat.

In the annual "Battle of the Woods," Elmwood won the trophy for the first time in six years.

The Eagles then traveled to Rossford where they held the state-ranked Bulldogs to a 28-6 scoring margin. Dave Dennis turned in an outstanding performance by gaining 133 yards in 25 tries. Duane Dunmyer scored the only Eagle touchdown on a 51-yard run.

Eastwood hosted Maumee, and held a tough Genoa squad scoreless for three quarters, but despite brilliant efforts, the Eagles could not break their jinx and lost to both.

The breaks of the game again seemed to fall to the opponents as Eagle football concluded one of its tougher years with losses to Oak Harbor and Springfield.

Five Eastwood gridders received All-league honorable mention. They were Dave Dennis, Vern Schmeltz, Don Schmeltz, Steve Spahn, and Bob Wilson.

Eagles S. Spahn (31), L. Bushman (63), and R. Spahn (80) team up to tackle ball carrier.

Eastwood's wrestlers came through with their best season ever with a 7-9 record this year. The team's outstanding grapplers were co-captains Dan Bolt (12-3) and Jim Lafferty (14-2). Other matmen with admirable records were Garold Thompson (9-6) and Greg Kasch (8-8). Lafferty, who placed second in the league tournament, was named Eastwood's Most Valuable Wrestler. Bolt and Jesse Alvarez came in fourth in the tournament. The boys selected Sally Gullufsen as wrestling queen.

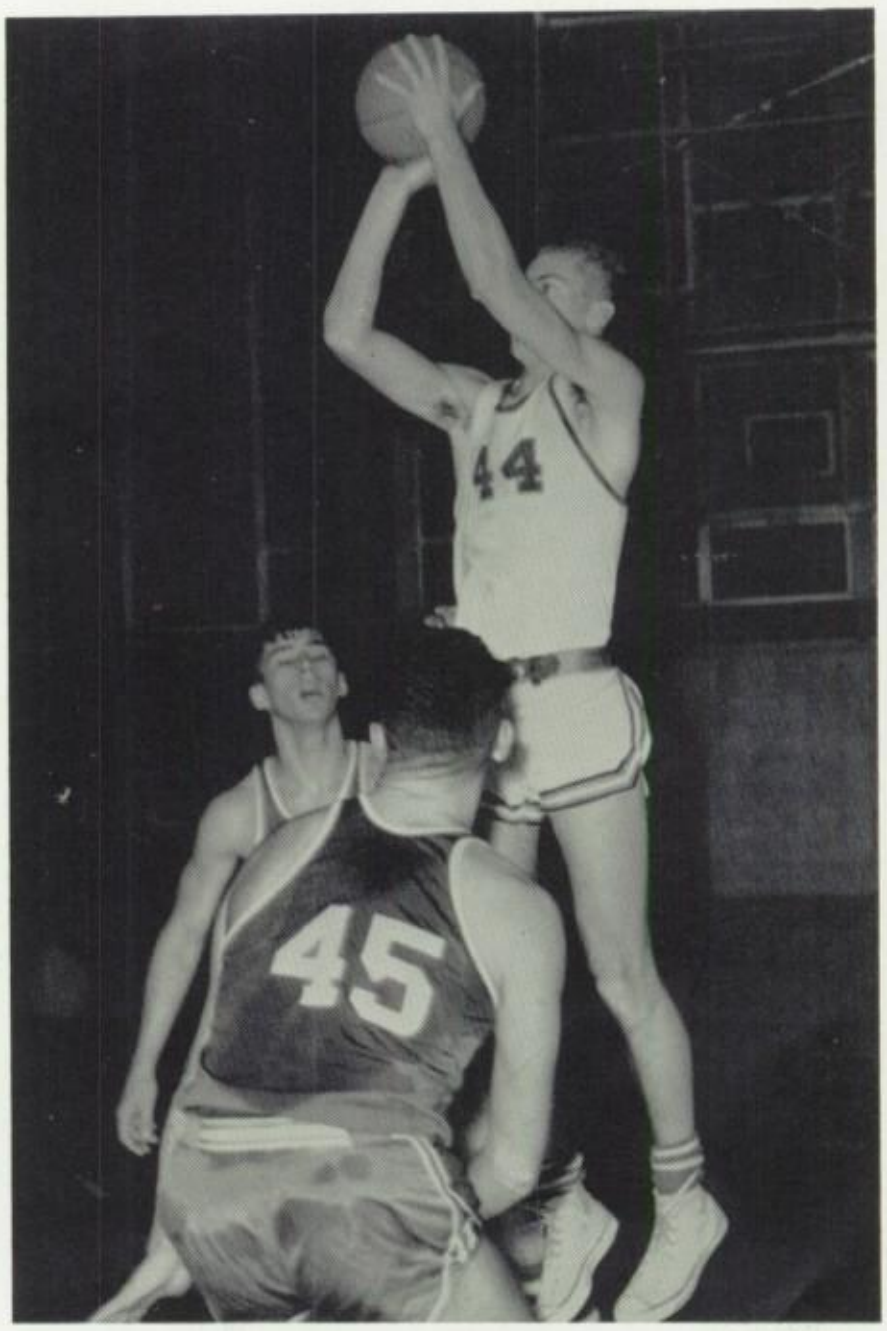
Eagle roundballers started their season rather shakily, losing two of the first three games. Then they began a steady climb upward with a win over Oak Harbor. Terry Holcomb led the team with 30 points as they bombed Genoa, 94 to 78. The Eastwood five traveled to Elmwood and pulled off a cliff-hanger over the Royals. The Eagles boosted their streak to six games by winning a hard-fought Homecoming victory against Westwood.

The team lost two league games before downing Anthony Wayne. Eastwood played Rogers and lost not only the game, but also forward Bob Snyder who fractured his elbow. The Eagles staged another comeback with their second victory over Elmwood. Terry Holcomb contributed 25 points as Eastwood triumphed in the "Battle of the Woods." Lake fell easily before the Eagles, 66 to 52.

Eastwood lost a very close contest to Bowling Green, but finished the season with victories over Perrysburg and North Baltimore. A fine regular season record of 12-6 was compiled by Dale Bruning, coach of the Eagles.

Eastwood's junior varsity, coached by Roland Huss, posted a 16-2 season record with the help of a 14 game winning streak. Coach Doyce Filiere's undefeated freshman team picked up 18 victories for Eastwood. These records point to even finer varsity seasons in the future.



Earl Jensen chalks up two points for the Eagles.

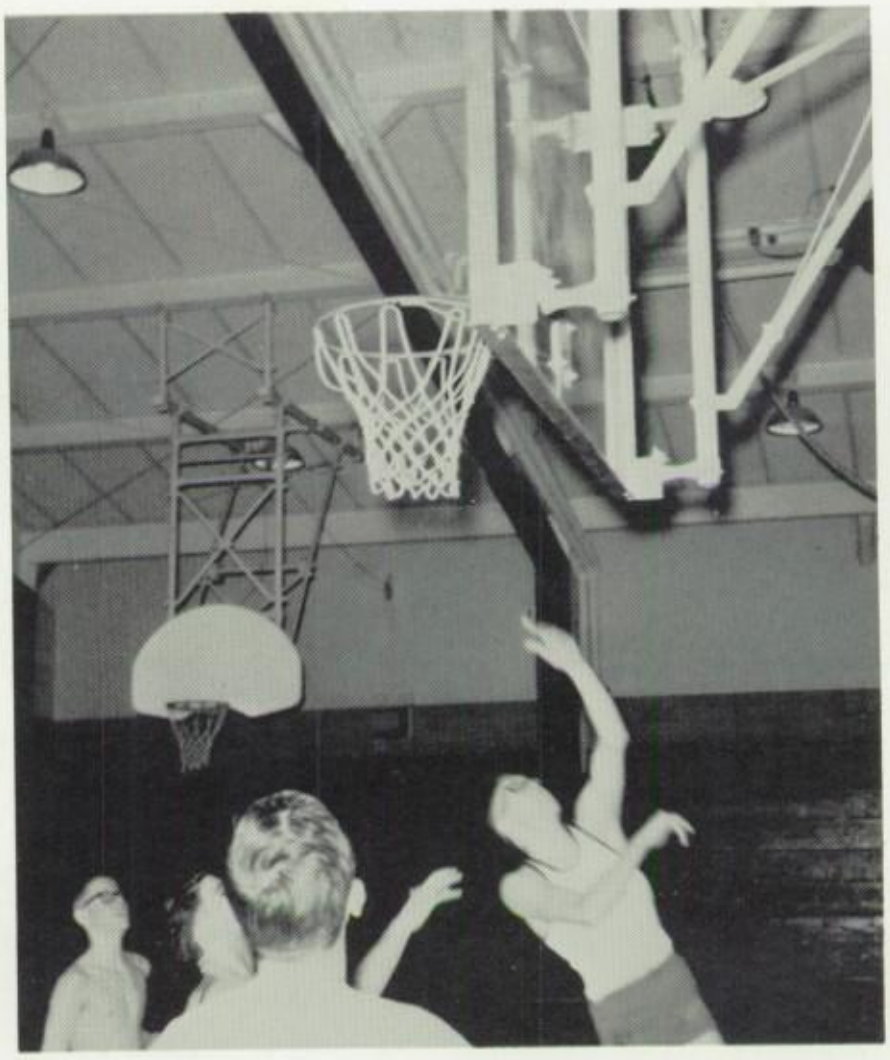
Intramural Sports Provide Action For All

Intramural sports provide exercise and fun for boys not participating in varsity athletics. Basketball, volleyball, and softball are the games most favored by the boys.

Eastwood's intramural program was primarily occupied with basketball this year. Approximately fifty players were involved in the competition. Six teams, the Hellcats, Gunners, Rockets, Hottrotters, Bobcats, and Reddogs, participated in the action.

The main event of the program was regular season play and after the season a tournament was held. All games were held in the high school gymnasium on Wednesday and Friday nights. The games were refereed by Mr. Edison Barney, intramural supervisor.



Intramural players wait anxiously for a rebound.

Recreation Obtained Through G.A.A.

The Girls Athletic Association is an organization for girls interested in sports and recreation. The membership, approximately one hundred, makes GAA the largest extra-curricular group at Eastwood. Throughout the school year, different activities and tournaments are held for each sport.

To be a member of GAA, each girl must go through an informal and formal initiation. They must realize the importance of sports and physical activity in life. Sportsmanship, honesty, and fair play are keynotes to the success of the Association.

Each Spring the GAA sponsors a formal dance. Also in the Spring, they have a special awards dinner to honor their outstanding members.

The officers are president, Linda Hetrick; vice-president, Judi Buchman; social secretary, Linda Graffice; recording secretary, Lois Kahlenberg; treasurer, Lonna Wagner; and recreational leaders, Patricia Ray and Mary Heintz. The Association is supervised by Miss Carole Huston.

Linda Graffice leaps high as she returns the ball.

Volleyball, enjoyed by most GAA members, provides many hours of recreation and valuable teamwork training.

Having completed four years of intensive study, the seniors of Eastwood High School now stand before the doors to the future. In the past, all of them have followed relatively the same paths, but beyond that door, the walkways branch off in many different directions. Some will lead to college and further education. Others will lead to employment and a vocation. Still others may point toward marriage and establishing a home.

Graduation, the first step through the door, is one of the biggest. It means putting all the training and education one has attained into practical application. It involves bidding farewell to many of the friends, activities, and ideas of the high school years, and moving toward new goals and personalities.

Eastwood has done its best to prepare its graduates mentally, physically, and socially to meet the needs of the years to come. However, the best educational system in the world cannot foresee every problem an individual might meet in the future. Therefore, as the graduates tread the paths of life, they must utilize what they have learned to help them get past the hurdles they will face. They must walk on their own toward more responsible citizenship.

Each senior must now step forward, open the doors, and move boldly into his future. The educational attainment of each will serve as a key to the new horizons before him.

Diplomas in hand, the seniors are silhouetted before those doors which lead from the high school into the world beyond.

Eastwood's graduating seniors are privileged to be the first class to complete all four years of their high school education in the new Eastwood High School building. Here they have prepared themselves for further education, a place in industry, or a vocation of their own.

For the past four years, friendships have created, skills have been cultivated, and knowledge has been gained through participation in dramas, publications, clubs, music and athletics. With the help of devoted teachers, the class has cultivated its talents.

The members of the Class of '65 have scored many victories in academic and various extracurricular activities.

Carnations were chosen as the flower and burgundy and white were chosen as class colors. The motto for the class is "Education is the chief defense of the nations."

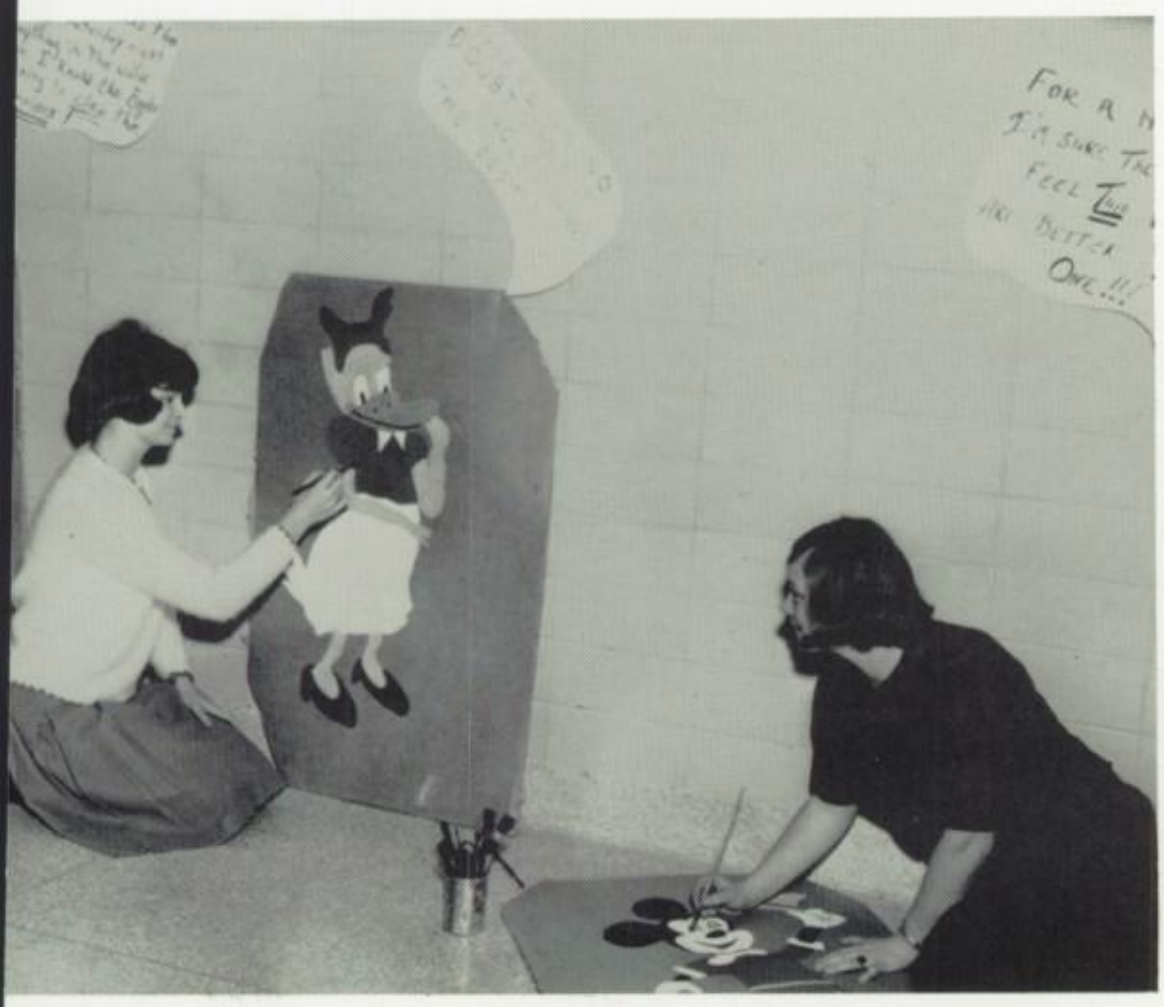
The advisors of the class were Mr. Dale Bruning, Mrs. Adeline Ridenour, Mrs. Jeanette Cornell, and Mr. Jess Hamilton. These advisors were very helpful in this year.

Step Into Future — Graduation

Seniors award Connie Thatcher football homecoming title.

Seniors elected Diane Busdeker to reign over basketball homecoming.

Hetrick and L. Wagner add final touches on hall decoration.



Graduates take first important step into the future.

Although underclassmen number approximately 425 strong, each one is an individual to students and teachers alike at Eastwood High School. Each one becomes a personal friend, pupil, and classmate in his own right.

As a freshman, he may seem exceedingly energetic but a little unsure of himself in the high school atmosphere. He is often undecided about his academic future. Extra activities and homework often add to the confusion as he wanders through the long year.

During his sophomore year, things proceed more smoothly. Having had the experience of one year behind him, he enters the second with more zest and self-confidence. This year passes more quickly as he assumes more activities and obligations around school.

By the time he reaches the junior class, time seems to fly. Yet he makes the most of each minute by sincere study and active participation in every phase of school life. He boasts that the junior class is best, but looks eagerly to the time when he may become a senior.

These are the stages of development through which every student must pass. Carefree, active, studious--these descriptive traits all enter the picture, each serving in some way to silhouette the underclassmen.

Under the guidance of the junior class officers and advisors Mrs. Mary Kuhlman, Miss Carole Huston, Mr. Russell Nowlin, Mr. Edison Barney, and Mr. Gary Bierly, the class undertook several projects to raise money for the prom. Among these projects were record hops after home games, a Christmas dance, and a candy drive. Another endeavor in which the class participated was the pep contest for the basketball Homecoming. This project proved quite successful as the class won the first place trophy for their superior job of decorating.

Of course, the primary objective of the year was the planning of the prom scheduled for May. The theme was chosen, committees were appointed, and funds were raised for this special occasion.

Sophomores stick together in school spirit.

Sophomores, in their second year of high school, exercised their voices and creative minds to help construct school spirit. They did this by participating in pep sessions and decorating their assigned hall area for the pep rally during the basketball homecoming. Besides this, they also joined clubs to make school life more enjoyable. Between the times for club meetings, pep rallies, and homework the sophomores found time to attend football and basketball games, plays, and choral and band concerts, making for a busy schedule.

Psst! What's the answer to number three?

The sophomores began their second year of high school ready to learn more about the world around them. On the whole the class was very successful in the year 1965. Each student was very eager to better his high school record of the year before. After the first few weeks, they settled down to study earnestly to improve themselves and their school. Courses the sophomores are required to take are English II, physical education, and health. Having achieved adequate grades most of the sophomores look forward to becoming a junior.

Monthly meetings were held by the sophomore class, the president presiding over each. Giving advice were the sponsors of the class Mrs. Margaret Harruff, Mr. Clarence Heckman, Mr. Wayne Ambrose, Mr. Richard Balthaser, Mr. Richard Welniak, and Mr. Doyce Filiere. After a discussion of how to raise money for the future years, the class decided to pay dues of one dollar per person. At a later meeting the members considered having a hootenanny to be scheduled sometime in the spring. Because of their initiative, the members of the sophomore class are well on their way to have enough money for coming years, especially money needed for their junior-senior prom. Since there are approximately 150 members in the sophomore class, it adds to much of the activities which are carried on during and after school. According to past performances, great expectations are held out for this class scholastically and athletically in the years to come.

GERALD LEE HAHN

August 18, 1949
October 26, 1964

Students of Eastwood were grieved by the death of Jerry Hahn, who died during a Reserve football game. Jerry will long be remembered for his perpetual smile and congeniality. In memory of their fellow classmate, sophomores decided to purchase evergreens for the school.

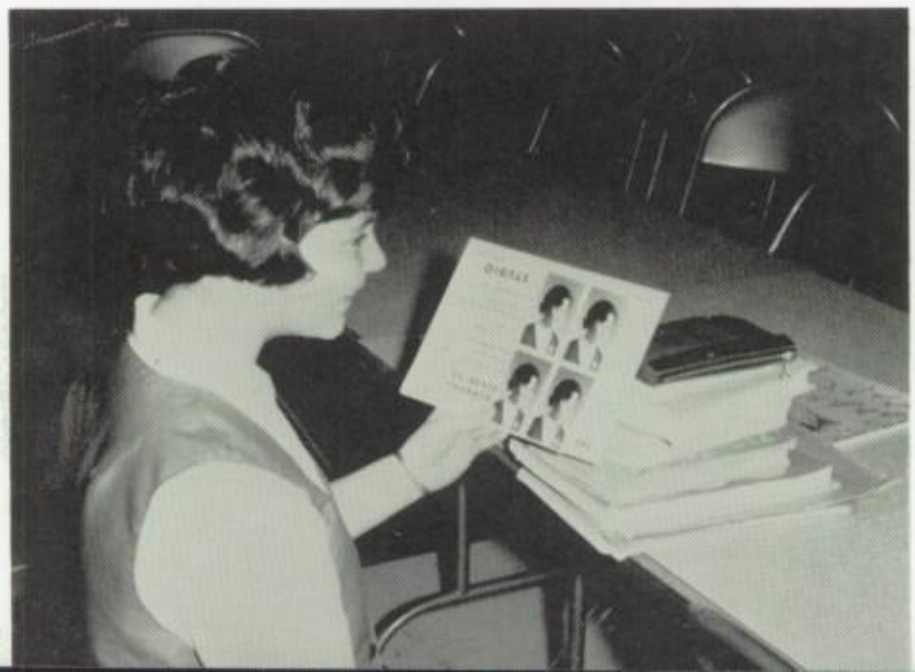
Patty Lahman admires her pictures.



Becoming a freshman introduces pupils into the transition period between junior high and high school. High school, of course, is entirely different in most respects. Besides needing more time to study, freshmen start joining extra-curricular activities and have more responsibilities at home. This is the first time for the freshmen to choose the courses they desire to take. All freshmen are required to take English I, biology, or general science, physical education, and health. Although most freshmen take four courses, some choose additional electives.

Sponsors of the freshman class were Mr. Ben Saunders, Mr. Adolph Madaras, Mrs. Dorothy Amos, Miss Shirley Reese, Mrs. Catherine Contini, and Mrs. Mary Asmus. Under their advice and the leadership of the officers, the freshmen participated in the pep week for the basketball homecoming. The class paid dues and began to raise money for future use. They sponsored a car wash during the spring and considered having a bake sale. These have pointed the class to more successful high school years.

Freshmen have many studies, but they seem to find time for many other activities, too. Besides attending club meetings, play rehearsals, and athletic practices, they spend extra time getting accustomed to high school life. A peculiar combination of serious study and mischievous mannerisms characterizes this class. They work off their excess energy with everything from homework to locker stacking. Yet freshmen also display tremendous pride in their school. This is shown as they yell loudly at pep sessions, study diligently to raise school standards, and work together as a class to add to the spirit of Eastwood High School.

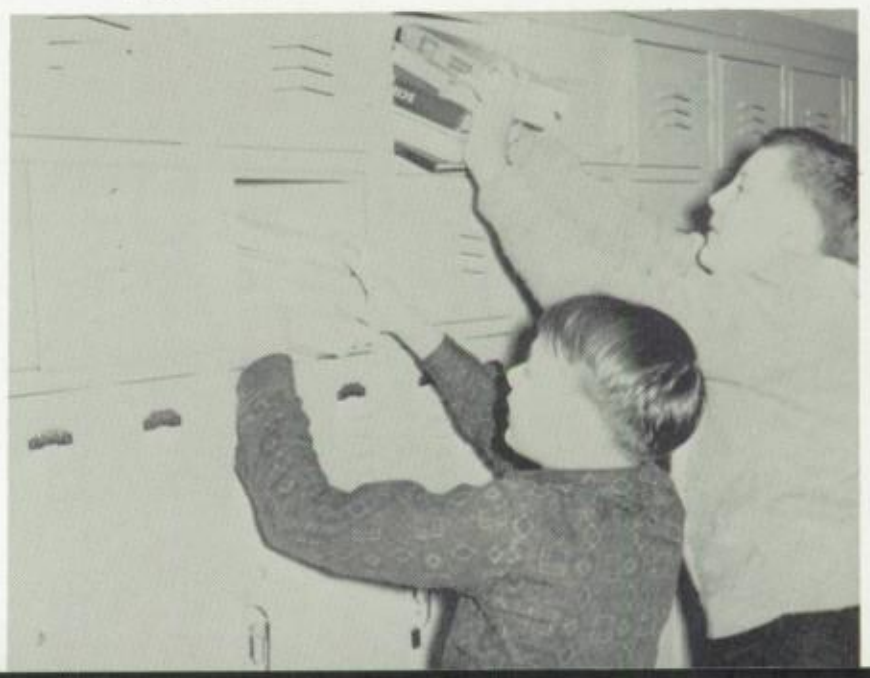
Now we know who stacked those lockers.



Junior High is an intermediate system between elementary and high school. The student uses his junior high years as a type of transition to a new educational experience.

Academic subjects are presented in different classes. Of course, each teacher may assign homework on a given night; thus, the pupils get a taste of the amount of studying involved in higher education. Also, they are now expected to govern their own study habits. Courses are geared to prepare each for high school work and lay a foundation for accelerated studies.

Junior High also means larger classes and consolidation of students from the entire system. Individuals make new acquaintances and build some lasting friendships, while learning to live as "citizens" in a new "society."

A number of activities add to the opportunities and appreciation of the school life. These include music, student government, athletics, and many others.

Thus, to each student, junior high is a silhouette of academics, friends, and activities presented in a new light.

Junior High Sports Program

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL REPRESENTATIVES: Arthur McGill, Roger Sergent, Terry Snyder, John Nelson, Tom Coakley.

Eastwood Junior High School continued its intramural football program this year. This program consisted of four teams made up of seventh and eighth grade students. The four teams consisted of sixteen or seventeen players. Sixty-five students went out for intramurals.

The games were held on Wednesday nights on the football field at the high school. The teams went by the names Red, White, Blue, and Green. Mr. Dan Garey, Mr. Elwood Gebhardt, Tony Spahn, Lloyd Spahn, and Phillip Fogle served as coaches. Every team played the others once. At the end of the season. The Green team and the Red team were tied for the championship.

One Saturday night, seventh and eighth grade teams consisting of players from the intramural teams, played seventh and eighth grade teams from Lake. The seventh graders came out victorious, but the two eighth grade teams deadlocked at 0-0 when the final whistle was sounded. This program develops future football teams for EHS.

Both the seventh and eighth grade basketball teams completed successful basketball seasons. The seventh grade team won nine games while losing only three. The seventh grade team averaged forty-seven points a game and held their opponents to twenty-seven points. Mr. Elwood Garey acted as coach to these boys.

The eighth grade team had a record of fourteen wins and two losses. They averaged forty-three points a game, while they held their oppontents to an average of twenty-six points a game. Mr. Fred Koester coached them through the season.

Each team had student managers who helped the coaches. Cheerleaders also sparked the spirit of the students for their teams.

At the end of the season an eighth grade tournament was held at the junior high. There were eight teams in the tournament. In the final game the Eagles fell to Bowling Green, losing by only three points. Genoa and Elmwood played in the consolation game. Trophies were presented to the winners and to the runner-up squads.

"Get out your instruments!" This is the greeting band students receive upon entering band class. Band classes are held every day with special sessions being held during the students' study halls. There is also an intermediate band. The band program is started in the fifth grade and carried through the eighth grade.

Band has become a popular activity, and the band now consists of sixty-seven members. These members are both seventh and eighth graders. Thirty percent of the students in Eastwood Junior High School belong to band, which is far above the national average of ten percent.

Preparation for high school band is made during junior high years. Students practice performing before an audience when they performed at the Christmas program and various other special programs. The band also entered a junior high band contest on April third.

The band is under the direction of Miss Ida Weidemann.

Chorus has become a tradition at the junior high school. Besides having a seventh and eighth grade chorus, there is a boys and girls chorus. There is also a select chorus for the students who enjoy singing and want to do extra work in vocal music. Everyone is required to take either seventh or eighth grade chorus, depend- in their grade, however. In this way, junior high students are prepared for high school chorus, which presents musicals and takes part in contests.

The junior high chorus is under the direction of Mr. Mark Deerwester. Mr. Deerwester tries to instill in the students' minds an appreciation and understanding of music, both classical and modern.

In chorus all types of songs are sung. Besides singing the students also learn. By singing folk songs they learn about the customs of many other countries. The students also sing modern music of domestic composers.

Special chorus has been continued again this year and is becoming increasingly more popular. There are one hundred and twelve students in the special chorus this year compared with seventy students last year.

In the spring the choruses presented a music program featuring their talents.

In one sense, the final section in the annual is of primary importance. Without the advertising pages, the publication of the AQUILA would be virtually impossible. It is this division which provides a great bulk of the funds necessary to produce a desirable yearbook.

Soliciting for advertising and setting up the pages of this section are the responsibility of the business staff. Assisted by the regular staff, this is accomplished in the early part of the school year.

The advantages offered by advertising in the AQUILA are two-fold: it benefits the businessmen of the area, and it allows the subscribers to purchase the annual at a reduced price. Through the various ads, our patrons may acquaint the readers with their businesses, products, and services. At the same time, the cost of each book is cut by several dollars.

Consequently, this section provides a silhouette of the community in action, sharing in the publication of the AQUILA.

Acknowledgments

This edition of the AQUILA could not go to press without aknowledging those people who made its publication possible. While this annual is primarily the work of certain staff members, it is also the contribution of many other students, teachers, and citizens.

Special thanks to Mr. Dallas Gardner and Mr. Richard Lowrie for their assistance in making several important decisions. Thanks to teachers for their cooperation with the staff. Our appreciation is also expressed to the janitors, Mr. Brown and Mr. Beeker, for keeping the building open late many nights and on Saturdays, enabling the working crew of the AQUILA to complete several deadlines. Furthermore, we extend our gratitude to Mr. Richard Welniak as advisor to the staff.

It would be virtually impossible to list all those who have contributed to the 1965 AQUILA, yet we are indebted to all. Finally, my personal gratitude to my associate sectional editors, listed below, who sedulously devoted many hours to the planning and composition of the preceding pages. Their versatility and willingness to assume additional pages were responsible for the completion of the sections.

It is our sincere hope that the effort of these people have made this publication the pride of all Eastwoodites.

Sincerely,

Steve Marks

Five seniors were named to the Principal's List out of the graduating Class of '65. They were June Heckman, Linda Hetrick, David Dennis, Linda Gallier, and Steven Marks. These five qualified by having maintained a 3.5 (A-) average through their entire high school career.

Qualifications for National Honor Society were met by sixteen students this year. A point average of 3.25 (B+) and a specified number of service points is required of each member. Twelve accumulative activity points are demanded of sophomores, sixteen of juniors, and twenty-five of seniors. Sophomores are accepted as probationary members, while juniors and seniors enjoy full membership and the privilege of attending the Wood County Honor Society banquet. These make National Honor Society perhaps the most exclusive organization at E.H.S.

Fifty-one students received various honors and awards at the annual Scholastic Banquet on May 4. Awards given included Honor Society, I.Q. League, Americanism and Government, Betty Crocker, and Senior Honor Roll Awards. "I Dare You" awards went to seniors Steven Marks and June Heckman. Arlyn Brinker and Margaret Hiser received Citizenship honors. Scholarships and several other presentations were announced.

Mr. Dale Bruning, Eastwood faculty member, acted as toastmaster for the evening. The guest speaker was Trevor J. Phillips, an instructor in the Education Department of Bowling Green State University.

The entire program was sponsored by the Kiwanis and Civic Clubs in the Eastwood District.

Annual Banquet Acclaims Athletes

Coach Dan White gives a letter and a handshake to Jesse Alvarez, Eastwood's "Most Improved Wrestler."

The 1965 Athletic Awards Banquet was held in the High School cafeteria on April 6. After the dinner, served by the band boosters, the program was officiated by Pastor Norman Schellhase of the Bethlehem Lutheran Church. Shirley Bauman, Nancy Amos, and the Senior Girls Ensemble #2 provided instrumental and vocal entertainment.

Instead of having a speaker, the coaches presented the awards to the athletes; and representatives of last year's and next year's football, basketball, and wrestling teams gave short dissertations.

Coach Bruning presents varsity letter to Phil Fogel.

Pastor Norman Schellhase acted as toastmaster.

Coach Wayne Ambrose gives recognition to the football team who had received their awards earlier.

Future Farmers Honored At Banquet

Mr. Ben Saunders, FFA adviser, presents a bouquet of roses to Cindi Bowen, FFA Sweetheart.

The annual FFA banquet was held April 13. Robert Obrock, 1965 State Farmer, presented awards to several FFA members. Mr. Lyman Johnson and Mr. C. W. Menter were named honorary chapter members. Cindi Bowen was crowned 1965 FFA Sweetheart by Sharon Burkholder, last year's Sweetheart. Lee Sundermeier, master of ceremonies, introduced James Perry, Jr., Regional Vice-president, who was guest speaker for the evening.

Guest speaker James Perry, Jr.

The FFA members opened the FFA Banquet with proper parliamentary procedure.

Reserves Win League Championship With 6-0 League Record

This year was a year of uplifted fortunes as both the varsity and reserve baseball teams improved on last year's records. The varsity, coached by Gary Bierly, posted a 10-7 overall record. The varsity tied for fourth in the league with a 4-4 record. Two varsity team members, Don Schmeltz and Phil Fogel, were members of the Northern Lakes League 2nd Team. The team's leading hitter was Schmeltz who hit at a .375 clip. John Kohring lead the pitching staff with a 2.24 earned run average. Three other baseballers, Bill Caughey, Jim Mandell, and Gary Haas, were named as All-League Honorable Mention Selections.

The reserve team won all six of its league games to become the first championship reserve baseball team at Eastwood. Larry Graffice lead the reserves in hitting with a .518 average. Jim Goodman was the outstanding pitcher, winning five games to one loss and striking out forty-seven batters in thirty-three innings.

This was a year of first's for Eastwood's track team. It was the first time Eastwood won a tri-meet by defeating Rossford and Anthony Wayne. The team won the Elmwood Relays for its first victory in relay competition. In dual meets, the team compiled a 5-3 record for its first winning season, and defeated Westwood 104-14 for the most points ever scored and the largest margin of victory.

Record breakers on this year's squad were R. Loomis in the mile run, W. Krotzer in the 100 year dash, R. Wilson in the 180 yard low hurdles, 880 relay team composed of D. Dunmyer, W. Krotzer, G. Thompson, and G. Chamberlain, and the mile relay team composed of R. Wilson, B. Bier, D. Dunmyer, and G. Thompson.

Eastwood golfers took to the greens and fairways this year to compile a remarkable 7-2 record. In the league match, the team placed third.

About ten boys were members of the team this year. Interest is the primary requirement for the golf team, and this interest, coupled with skill and the coaching of Mr. Dan Garey, drove the squad to a victorious season.

Home matches were played at Tanglewood Golf Course.

Oriental Theme Highlights

D. Walston and date pause at the refreshment table.

G. Lohrbach offers a helping hand to date.

May 15 was a big day for many high school students' lives. "Sayonara" being the theme of the junior-senior prom, the juniors bid the seniors farewell.

Arriving at the prom with their dates, the students entered a beautifully decorated gymnasium. At the end of the dance floor a fifty-five foot dragon was standing, looking on as the people danced to the music of the "Dee Cees" stage band. An oriental garden at the side of the gymnasium attracted many an eye.

Following the reading of the class will by Steven Marks, senior class president, and the class prophecy by Duane Gross, junior, a buffet was served by the mothers of the junior class. After partaking of the buffet, many people returned to the dance floor.

At one-thirty in the morning, the gymnasium emptied as most left for Lehmann's Lodge near Fostoria. Here they enjoyed such activities as swimming, dancing, miniature golf, and other types of recreation. Students could also pass the evening by bowling at nearby Seneca Lanes.

Returning to the school at four-thirty, they enjoyed a breakfast served by the junior mothers. After eating, everyone headed toward home, storing the prom in their memories as a lasting treasure.

"Sound Of Music" Rated Excellent

Von Trapp children eagerly prepare to sing along with Maria as she teaches them the delightful "Do-Re-Mi."

Max commences "Somersaulting at a Cockeyed Angle."

Rogers' and Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music" was presented on March 7,8, and 9. This musical was produced by the music department, under the direction of Mr. Lawrence McCormic and Mr. Mark Deerwester.

Nearly eighty students comprised the cast. Sarah Witker portrayed the role of Maria; Dennis Walston, the part of Captain von Trapp. Other lead roles were played by Robert Bomlitz as Max, Sue Bockbrader as Elsa, and Fareal Brinker as Mother Superior. A unique addition to the musical was a number of younger children who handled the parts of the adorable von Trapp children. Other minor characters also performed admirably in their parts.

The musical accompaniment was supplied by a special orchestra of music students and several other musicians.

The plot centered primarily around the life of Maria. Maria's love for music raises some complaints in the abbey. She takes a leave of absence from the abbey, meets the von Trapps, and falls in love with the Captain. Political implications affect the family as the Nazis move into Austria, their homeland. The story ends happily as Maria, Captain, and children flee to safety.

Capacity crowds attested to the excellent story, music, and performances involved in the play.

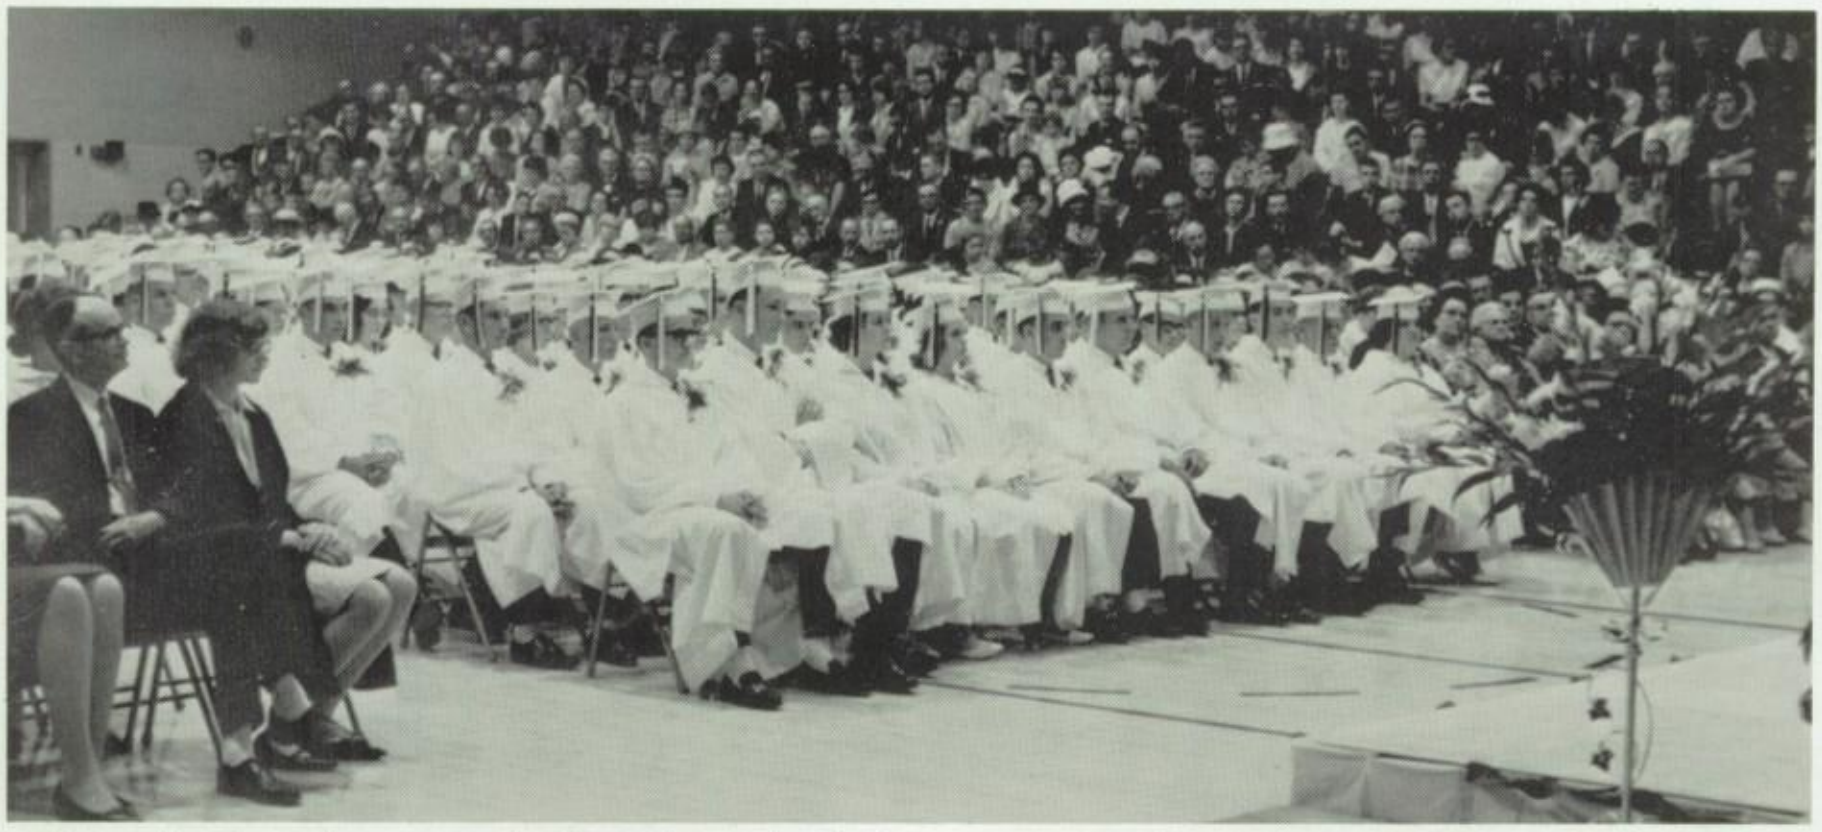
Seventh Annual Commencement Held



Donned in caps and gowns, graduating seniors make final appearance as a class as they prepare to receive diplomas.

Baccalaureate and commencement ceremonies were held on Sunday, May 23, 1965, for the graduating Class of '65. One hundred six seniors, the largest class in the history of Eastwood, received their diplomas. The class wore white caps and gowns, burgundy and white tassels, and burgundy tipped carnations.

Senior president Steven Marks extended the welcome address at commencement. Dallas Gardner, executive head, introduced Dr. John E. Exner of the Psychology Department of Bowling Green State University, who delivered the commencement address. Mr. Norman Hamen, president of the Board of Education, presented the diplomas to the seniors.

Congratulations were extended following the recessional as the seniors formed a receiving line.

I.Q. League Faces Stiff Competition

FIRST ROW: S. Marks, W. Bockbrader, Mr. Lowrie, M. Westerhaus, M. Gardner. SECOND ROW: J. Heckman, L. Busdeker, J. Busdeker, D. Huprich.

Eastwood's I.Q. Team, composed this year of four male scholars, played five interscholastic games over radio and television station WFOB. Their final record was 3-2 in a league comprising somewhat more rigid competition. The I.Q. League, consisting of thirteen county and area schools, affords an opportunity for students to increase and exhibit their knowledge in various subjects including science, English, current events, history, and government.

Office Assistants Prove Invaluable

Ten girls serve as office assistants to Mrs. Milda Sanders, high school secretary, and to the other office staff. At least one girl is busy in the office each period of the school day. Their tasks include typing stencils; recording absences and grades; counting cafeteria money; mimeographing weekly bulletins, menus, and tests; and performing various other secretarial duties. Distributing announcements to various rooms and locating teachers and students throughout the building also occupies much of their time.

Principal Richard Lowrie selects these girls during spring registration and asks them to serve. The only desired requirement is that they be able to type.

N. Dean types copy of weekly bulletin.

Roman Banquet and G.A.A. Formal

"When in Rome, do as the Romans do!" seemed to be the theme of the Latin Club banquet.

Forty members and five guests attended Eastwood's first Latin Club Banquet on April 28. The affair was held in the school cafeteria, which had been transformed into a festive Roman banquet hall.

Garbed in Roman attire and reclining at lowered tables decorated with laurel and burning tapers, the SPQR presented an authentic enactment of a typical Roman dinner party.

After the guests were seated at the tables, six slaves removed the guests' sandals and hung garlands around their necks. Throughout the meal, the slaves served food, passed the finger bowls after each course, wiped off the tables, and distributed gifts.

Between the courses an ensemble under the direction of Karen Hasel sang "America Pulchra" or "America the Beautiful." Following the second course Mark Schulte, who served as master of ceremonies, offered a sacrifice to the Lares and Penates, who are Roman gods of the home. To conclude the festivities a mock trial written by Sherri Matheny and a skit were presented.

"Plantation Paradise" Theme of G.A.A. Formal

It looks like everyone's having fun.

The theme of the annual G.A.A. dance was "Plantation Paradise." This theme was carried out in creating a romantic setting of an old southern plantation. The plantation with its majestic columns helped develop the romantic atmosphere which filled the gymnasium. There was also a bandstand with a canopy which displayed "The Three J's" of Perrysburg who provided entertainment and dance music for the evening. A refreshment patio was set up in the hall.

The climax of the evening came when the G.A.A. girls and their dates formed a path for the announcement of the king. The G.A.A. president, Linda Hetrick, broke the tension by proclaiming Bill Caughey, senior, as king. Terry Holcomb and Dwight Wilson, both seniors, were also named to the royal court.

Final Assembly Highlighted By Presentations

Mr. Welniak presents a yearbook award to R. Bomlitz.

Final awards presentations were made at an assembly on May 13. Varsity and reserve letters were presented to baseball players and G.A.A. members. Chorus and ensemble pins, band awards, and debate trophies were given to a number of students. District scholarship certificates were awarded for places in the local tests. Student council and Aquila staff pins were also awarded.

The 1965 edition of the Aquila was revealed for the first time and was distributed to the student body. Seniors also received their class composites.

Since it was the last assembly for the seniors, the class made a grand entry as they marched in to the beat of a drum cadence. Underclassmen honored them by standing while the class paraded into the auditorium.
